ITALY HINTS RAIL LINES HIT BY CHUTE INVADERS

ROME, Feb. 15 (AP)—Freight traffic along several railway lines in southern Italy where Blackshirt guards have rounded up British parachutist-dynamiters has been suspended, it was learned today. Italian authorities had said the British, who floated from the sky with loads of machine guns, hand grenades and explosives for demolition on the night of Feb. 10-11, had communications and waterworks as their sabotage objectives.

The high command said yesterday all the British were captured. It was officially announced that militiamen in the zone southeast of Naples took part in the roundup

Acceptance of freight was suspended on lines connecting Brindisi, Bari, Taranto, Foggia and Lecce, as well as at all stations in Naples because of "the present transportation situation and forwarding difficulties," as the communications ministry announced.

IN ARMY UNIFORMS

Military sources indicated the uniforms worn by the British would save them from execution as spies.

The parachutists were said to have worn regular uniforms, and thus were treated as prisoners of war. Had they been caught in civilian clothes, they would have been shot, these sources said.

The Rome newspaper Tavere minimized the danger of invasion by parachutists and said the landings in southern Italy were neither "a real surprise nor an alarming fact" because such parachutists were used "by all well organized armies."

Isolated clusters of parachutists have only a limited effectiveness, Tevere said, since, as in the German invasions of Norway and Holland, they were only successful when they were the vanguard for attack by other forces.

The Rome radio yesterday said 19 of the parachutists had been captured, along with another group of unstated size.

FOILED BY INJURY

The report said the British had succeeded in seizing some farms in the area attacked, preventing the farmers from sounding an immediate alarm. The capture by police of one of the invaders who had broken a leg in his parachute fall gave the attempt away, however.

The parachute attack possibly was the second of two attempts by the British to cripple Italian hydroelectric power sources, as part of a continuing campaign.

Feb. 2, the British announced, a successful torpedo and bomb attack was made by planes on "one of the main sources of power supply" in Sardinia, which Rome communiques identified as the Tirso River Dam. The Italians denied any damage was done.

Hydro-electric power, which the Fascist regime has developed extensively, is especially vital to Italy because of her shortage of coal.

VATICAN PAPER FLAYS AXIS' CLAIM OF POPE'S SYMPATHY AS FALSEHOOD

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 15 (INS)—Attempts to indicate that Pope Pius XII favors the Axis powers in their war against England were bitterly criticized today by Osservatore Romano, semi-official Vatican newspaper.

The publication denounced "persons responsible for carrying out a systematic campaign of inventions of falsehoods" tending without foundation to indicate the Pontiff had openly thrown his suport to the Axis.

"Some persons," said Osservatore Romano, "have dared to spread false news, such as claims that the Holy Father has declared obligatory hte adaptation of a new European situation, and also claims that the Holy See since remote times has fought democratic forms of government."

The newspaper included in this category of "false news" the "allegation that the life of the Catholic church in Germany is more than satisfactory."

"It is also falsely alleged," said Osservatore, "that a Pontifical representative brought the encouragement of the Holy Father to officers and men of a nation which had passed under the flag of another belligerent, and also that the Pope blessed the arms of a single nation.

"In addition, it has been falsely published that the Pope urged France to avoid ruin by making an immediate, separate peace.

"Recently it also has been falsely alleged that the congregation of the Holy Office has taken a stand in connection with extension of Spanish racial policy to American countries.

Conant Goes to London For F. D.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt dispatched Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University, to England today as head of a special new mission charged with expediting directly to Washington "recent scientific information of importance to national defense.

Other scientists will be given similar assignments "from time to time," the White House announced.

Dr. Conant, a research chemist, sailed from Jersey City, N. J., today for Lisbon on the first leg of his journey, accompanied by Frederick L. Hovde, assistant to the president of the University of Rochester in New York State, and Carroll L. Wilson, special liaison officer of the National Defense Research Committee and an engineer associated with the Research Corp. of Boston. Wilson makes his home in Framingham, Mass.

JOINS GROUP

The Harvard president, who testified before the senate foreign relations committee Tuesday in support of the administration's British aid bill, thus joined the growing group of prominent American visitors to the beleaguered British Isles.

Among these Harry L. Hopkins, whom the President sent as his personal envoy to London pending appointment of an Ambassador, was homeward bound today.

Hopkins left San Juan, Puerto Rico, today and will fly to New York on the Yankee Clipper.

Hopkins' return apparently signalized the departure for London within a few days of John G. Winant, whom the President recently named ambassador. The appointment received Senate confirmation this week.

Dr. Conant and Wilson, the White House said in a statement, will remain in England about a month and Hovde will stay there as permanent secretary.

In this capacity Hovde will represent the research committee and be in position to facilitate the work of the successive scientific groups visiting England.

HANDLED DIRECTLY

The Harvard president is a member of the administration's national defense research committee and one of his associates in that agency, commenting on the significance of the London assignment, said that heretofore information on the latest military devices had been exchanged indirectly by Britain and the United States through Canada.

"This will be the first time it will have been handled directly," he said.

The White House statement said that "first hand observation of recent English scientific research and experience is important for the prosecution of America's program of research on problems of national defense."

"As such collaboration proceeds," the statement continued,

School courses include certain of Col. Lindbergh's writings which are available for optional reading, such as the book "We" telling of flights across the Atlantic and other journeys.

Chum Links Man To Girl Scout's Trip

Spurred by the newly-revealed story of a Girl Scout chum, Saugus police launched a fresh search today for a man believed to be responsible for the three-day disappearance of 16-year-old Alice Anderson, now in a state of collapse at Lynn Hospital.

The chum, Police Chief John T. Stuart of Saugus said, was able to give police a description of both the man and the automobile.

This new story cast an entirely different light on the case, Chief Stuart said.

When Alice stumbled into the Everett home of her grandparents after her mysterious absence and was questioned, she told a story of having been carried away in an automobile to Maine by a man.

Then she was taken to Lynn Hospital, and there doctors diagnosed her case as amnesia. They were inclined to discount the abduction story.

Authorities were unable to get any further details from her for the time being.

She was in weakened condition—although in no danger—and was unable to talk coherently, according to authorities.

Later, it was planned to have her mother, Mrs. Arvid Anderson of Pleasant ave., try to talk to the girl in the presence of police.

The attractive girl was able to utter only a few words before she collapsed at the home of her grandfather, John Knoterson of West st., Everett, Chief Stuart said.

It was after a Girl Scout meeting Tuesday night that she met the man, according to the story of the hysterical girl.

Chief Stuart said he was told that the motorist was driving a Rhode Island car and that he was taking her to a restaurant on Newburyport Turnpike for a soda.

OFF ON CRUISE—On the high seas today are John Roosevelt and his wife, the former Anne Clark . . . aboard the Santa Paula on a 12-day cruise to Bermuda, Venezuela and Caribbean ports. "I've been aching to go to South America for a long time, and now I'm taking advantage of my first vacation in a year and a half to go there," said the President's son before sailing from New York.

Car Mystery Death May Be Solved By Doctor's Revelation

A mysterious telephone call, purporting to come from a doctor, offered a possible solution to the equally mysterious death of 34-year-old Stuart B. Bohaker of Lynn, Cambridge police said this afternoon.

Bohaker, a grain salesman, married and the father of two, was found lifeless in his unlocked automobile, on a lonely woods road off Newburyport Turnpike in Topsfield, apparently dead four days.

Capt. John J. Canney of Cambridge declared that he had received the telephone call shortly after the dead man's organs had been turned over to Dr. Alan G. Moritz, state police pathologist.

"I am a doctor who had been treating this man (Bohaker) for the last five years," Capt. Canney quoted his caller as saying.

"When the news of his death was printed I became alarmed immediately as to the possibility of someone possibly being involved in the case.

"I felt that an innocent person might be arrested because of information I have, I feel as though I might have the solution to the case."

MEETING ARRANGED

Capt. uCanney said that his caller declined to talk about the "information" over the telephone, but offered himself for an interview with the captain and State police, if necessary.

The knowledge of the dead man the caller professed to have was "far oeybnd that of the man's parents, wife of any relative," according to Capt. Canney.

An appointment was immediately made over the telephone and authorities went to the address given.

Up to this point no clue had been unearthed which might have explained how Bohaker died.

NO WOUNDS ON BODY

At first a pair of men's gloves, found on the auto seat beside the body, were studied, because Bohaker was wearing gloves. They proved to be a spare pair of his.

There were no wounds or marks on the body, no signs of pills or

Mrs. F. D. in Boston, Parries War Query

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was in town today for a number of appointments — principally to address a luncheon meeting of the Boston Women's Trade Union League at Hotel Statler.

But like the indefatigable campaigner she is, she found time to inspect a new unit of the National Youth Administration in Charlestown, to greet old friends and spar back and forth with a corps of question-popping newspaper men and women before her main engagement.

"I've taken two dancing lessons to see if it would be a substitute for a little exercise," she told the inquisitive feminine members of the press delegation.

CAN'T KEEP TO DIET

"It was just ordinary ballroom dancing. I did dance with Mr. Morgenthau, though." (Sec. of the Treasury Mongenthau.)

"Diet is good, but I can never stick to it."

Questions of a more serious nature, the tall, smiling, always-at-ease mistress of the White House parried ever so nicely.

Someone tried to get her to commit herself on whether she thought the Japanese situation was becoming more critical and she only countered:

"You read the papers."

She did, however, confide that she had received two letters from Queen Elizabeth of England since the latter's visit to the United States, but when someone asked about them, she replied:

"They were on a specific subject."

And that closed that subject.

After the Statlre address, Mrs. Roosevelt planned to go to Littauer Center at Harvard o address a meeting of the Harvard Liberal

Death Ends Marge's Radio Act With Myrt

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Feb. 15 (INS)—Death dissolved the radio team of Myrt and Marge today when it unexpectedly overtook Marge in the Englewood General Hospital, after she gave birth to an eight-pound boy. The child survived.

Marge, the mother of two other sons of a previous marriage, was the wife of Peter Fick, former national swim champion.

Almost to the hour when she entered the hospital, Marge remained at the microphone through which she had become nationally known in 10 years of broadcasting. Her last appearance was at 4:15 p. m. yesterday over the Columbia network.

Marge, whose maiden name was Donna Damerel, was teamed with her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Vail. They broadcast daily, Monday through Friday at 10:15 a. m. and again at 4:15 p. m.

On Dec. 23, 1939, Marge won a divorce in Elizabeth, N. J., from William J. Kretsinger, also a radio actor, whom she charged with desertion.

Twenty-nine years old when death came, Marge's marriage to Fick was her third. She had gained custody of a four-year-old son, Richard, from Kretsinger.

She had another son, Charles, 11, by her first marriage to John Griffin.

DRAFT CALLS 5854 MEN IN 4 N. E. STATES

A special draft call was issued today by Maj. Gen. James A. Woodruff, commanding the First Corps Area, placing requisitions on the Governors of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine and Vermont for 5854 men for induction beginning March 10.

Massachusetts and New Hampshire are not included in today's total, which brings the New England requisition figure to 29,921 men.

Allotments in today's call are: Connecticut, 3514 men, sixth call; Vermont, 376, fifth call; Maine, 976, fifth call; Rhode Island, 988, fourth call. These will be for units of the 43rd Division, which will be inducted Feb. 24 and train at Camp Blanding, Fla.

Massachusetts was not included, Army officials said, because on Feb. 5 Gen. Woodruff issued a call to Gov. Saltonstall requisitioning 9100 draftees to give the 26th Division 17,600 men. That call—the fifth for Massachusetts—set the induction date as March 1.

It was explained that no men of other states were being called, but when needed for the 43d Division they would be taken from the other five New England States.

This was in accord with the War Department's policy of assigning men to the outfits from states from which the men themselves came.

The New England calls have been: First, 984 men; second, 4371 men; third, 5020 men; fourth, 4592; fifth, 9100; sixth, 5854.

3d U. S. War Flier Killed

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP)—The first action fatality of the American Eagle Squadron, a force fighting on the side of the RAF, was announced officially today. Edwin Ezell Orbizon, 23, of Sacramento, Cal., was killed while chasing a German plane. He was on a training flight.

Orbison was the third American flier recorded killed. William Mead Lindsley Fiske, III, Olympic bobsled champion, was killed in a fight over an RAF airdrome last August. He was flying in a regular RAF fighter unit, not the Eagle Squadson.

Howard Lekrone, an American Eagle Squadron flier, was killed recently in a flying accident, not connected with enemy action.

Orbizo had been buried in a village churchyard close to his flying station and near Lekrone's grave, before the official announcement was made.

PROF. CABOT WARNS N. E. BUSINESS TO BE PREPARED

"A world of violence is a world of stark realism for which we who have spent our lives largely in a world of illusion are ill-prepared," Prof. Philip Cabot warned 200 business executives attending the two-day New England Council defense meeting which opened at Harvard University today.

"Unity must somehow be achieved, or, in our efforts to act separately, we shall be broken under the strain," he said.

The conference was called to study business problems growing out of national defense efforts. Its purpose, Prof. Cabot explained, will be to provide New England business men with technical knowledge of the defense program and show how business best may play its part in the national effort.

"The shift from a world of peace to a world of violence is difficult," Prof. Cabot said. "For us this adjustment will be particularly hard. In an industrial economy so complex that no one seems to have understood it, illusion is not only easy but perhaps inevitable."

Melrose Woman Dies in Brook

The body of Mrs. Annie M. Stuart 75, West Wyoming ave., Melrose, was found today lodged in branches in the swift current of Spot Pond brook, several hndred feet below the Stuart residence.

Medical Examiner Roscoe D. Pelley reported her death due to drowning.

Mrs. Stuart's son said he found her missing early today. From a check of her clothing, he discovered she had left the house wearing a skirt and a heavy overcoat over her nightclothes. The body was discovered several hours later by Patrolman Patrick Murray of the metropolitan police and a group of CCC boys.

Stuart could ascribe no reason for the tragedy, according to police. He said it was his mother's habit to arise early and go for walks.

Rookie Cops Boost Tag Drive to 7000

As their superior officer observed today that wise motorists were leaving their cars at home, the Boston police rookie tagging squad boosted the number of tags issued to parkers to the 7000 mark.

Capt. James T. Sheehan, who is directing the drive against parking which has aroused widespread complaints in the past 10 days, said that many car owners were getting wise and leaving their cars at home. Citing his wife's experience, Capt. Sheehan said:

"She leaves the car at Field's Corner and takes the rapid transit into town and, consequently, gets home a lot quicker than by driving all the way into the business district.

HELPS BUSINESS

"I can recommend the same procedure to anyone living in the suburbs.

"This practise will help business so much by leaving Boston streets clear for commercial traffic and out-of-town visitors.

"Boston streets, you must remember, were made for horse and wagon, not for the auto." . . .

Listed for special attention tonight is the theater district, with particular notice to be taken of motorists who park in front of fire hydants or too near street corners.

Municipal court attaches revealed that the drive is beginning to take its toll of pocketbooks. They pointed out that a large proportion of the 700 reporting to the clerk today were called on to make payments as second or third time violators of traffic regulations.

100 PAY FINES

Robert McDonough, clerk in charge of the parking violations division, estimated that around 100 paid either one or two dollars for reporting with their second or third pink slip.

He also said that about 50 drivers were fourth or fifth time ofenders, which means being summoned to court early next week to face the prospect of $5 or larger lines.

Among those tagged today was a member of teh U. S. Internal Revenue staff. The gentleman porduced a sheaf of badges, certificates and identification cards. But it availed him nothing. Police advised he would get his pink slip in the mail just the same.

Negro Draft Rejections Explained

Protest over the rejection of two Negroes by the Army induction center at Hartford, Ct., brought answer today from Col. William A. Collier, in charge of personnel of the First Corps Area, that selection of trainees is based on facilities available to shelter them and the number of units in which they could be trained.

The rejection, he said, in answer to the protest lodged by Col. Ernest L. Averill, Connecticut selective director, "cannot under any circumstances be construed as an effort to differentiate between white and Negro soldiers."

The rejection raised a storm in Connecticut when Col. Averill was notified that David ing Tompkins, a volunteer, had been rejected by the induction center after he was certified by the draft board. Tompkins, it was stated, gave up his job to volunteer.

The second man rejected was Luther B. Hayes of Fairfield, Ct., who is said to have been sent home without receiving transportation money.

Col. Ernest A. Averill, state draft director, ordered draft boards today not to replace rejected Negroes with white men, declaring that Connecticut recognizes "no colored quota."

"This is not a question of colored registrants," he commented, "it is a question of maintaining the fundamental honesty of the system."

Lieut-Col. Brock Putnam said the Negroes were rejected because:

"I am merely carrying out my orders from the corps area."

U. S. Army Plans Record Maneuvers

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (AP)—The first army under command of Lieut.-Gen. Hugh A. Drum, will take the field this summer in "the most comprehensive and exacting maneuvers ever held in the United States in peace-time."

Gen. Drum, discussing the maneuvers at a press conference today, said that between 300,000 and 350,000 men would concentrate for four weeks, probably in the South in the late summer or early autumn.

11 CONNOLLY WITNESSES WAIT RULING

Judge John Q. Brackett of Municipal Court will pass upon an intricate legal point Monday afternoon when a rehearing is held to determine whether warrants shall issue against 11 witnesses in the John Patrick Connolly bribery trial.

Connolly is seeking complaints against the witnesses on the basis of their testimony at his trial—that they, as his subordinates, were forced to pay out sums of money to hold their jobs.

His contention is that these witnesses broke the law which says no person shall offer "a legislative, executive, judicial, county or municipal officer" any gift or gratuity with intent to influence him.

Connolly himself is fighting his conviction in Supreme Court and claims he never did receive any "gifts or gratuities" from the eleven who testified.

Yesterday, on Connolly's application, the warrants were issued, but after Judge Brackett had studied the matter, and after the Boston Bar Ass'n had interceded, the court decided the entire issue must be argued out, and ordered a rehearing.

Opera House El Subway Set to Open Tomorrow

Boston's new Huntington ave. subway tube, which cost more than $7,200,000 and took more than four years to build, will be opened tomorrow.

Designed to speed service for thousands of commuters and unravel time-consuming snarls, the new subway runs from Copley sq. to the Boston Opera House.

Because the WPA contributed $4,800,000 toward labor costs and some $300,000 for other expenses, the project is looked upon as the second largest undertaken by the government agency. Only La-Guardia Airport in New York exceeds it in cost.

SAVING IN TIME

Traffic experts estimate running time in the new tube will be reduced by at least 10 minutes between Copley sq. and the opera house. During rush hours the time-saving is expected to reach 20 minutes.

Removal of street cars from Huntington ave. will allow a freer flow of traffic to and from the Worcester turnpike terminus in Brookline Village.

From an engineering standpoint the new tube offered many intricate problems.

The steel and concrete tube not only had to be wrapped in a waterproof shell, but had to be laid under railroad tracks at Exeter st. and Huntington ave.

HAD TO MOVE MAINS

During construction it was necessary at various times to relocate five huge water mains and numerous sewer pipes.

The first regular service is scheduled to run at 4:30 p. m. A party of city officials, Boston Elevated executives and WPA representatives will make a formal inspection trip at 2:30.

There are two stops on the new line, one at Mechanics building and the other at Symphony Hall.

Dunkirk Heroes Guard Oil Base

Some 500 Scotch Highlanders are guarding the world's largest oil refinery at Aruba, Dutch West Indies, according to members of the crew of the oil tanker Hanseat, which arrived in Boston today.

All of the guards are veterans of the British expeditionary force which staged the heroic retreat from Dunkirk prior to the fall of France, the crew reported.

The tanker, of Panamanian registry, is unloading a cargo of oil from Aruba at the Mexican Petroleum Co. dock in Chelsea.

Asked about reports the Nazis had attempted to land a force to destroy the refinery, the crew laughed and said it was the first they had heard of such a story.

However, they did say that of 30 tankers in service at the start of the war only 40 were now operating. The others have been sunk.

Thousands Rush to File U. S. Tax Returns Here

By far the largest crowd to date—over 3500 men and women by the time the office closed at noon—stormed the office of the collector of internal revenue today to fill out blanks for incomes received in 1940.

Seventy-five deputies had to be put on, in addition to the regular personnel, to expedite handling the rush.

Because of the jam in the corridors and stairways, Federal building officials were forced to assign a special elevator marked "8th Floor Only."

Asst. Collector Thomas H. Buckley attributed the large turnout to the number of new income earners who fall in the $800 class.

This applies to single persons and married persons not living together, in contrast to the $2000 requirement for married couples.

In assisting first-timers, the deputies and clerks pointed out that the income tax may be paid in full at the time of filing, or in four installments—on or before March 15, June 15, Sept. 15 and Dec. 15.

They warned that if no return is filed or the tax is not paid severe penalties may be imposed.

The last day for filing is March 15.

Wife Framer Gets 3 Months

Hyman Goldberg, Allston druggist who last Wednesday suddenly pleaded guilty to charges of framing his wife to procure false evidence for a divorce, was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction in Suffolk Superior Court today by Chief Justice John P. Higgins.

Goldberg was specifically sentenced for soliciting Philip Woodman of Dorchester, his former drug clerk, to compromise Mrs. Katherine Goldberg of Murdock st., Brighton.

Charges of conspiracy to entrap his wife and to fraudulently procure testimony against her were filed.

Woodman, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiracy to entrap Mrs. Goldberg and who had turned state's evidence, was put on probation for a year.

Jupiter Due To Pass Saturn

Of course you know, but just in case you've forgotten—the planet Jupiter is going to pass Saturn for the second time in six months Thursday, according to Prof. Leon Campbell, Harvard astronomer. He pointed out that Jupiter, which beats Saturn regularly in their never-ending race around the zodiac, is due again Thursday, but won't beat his rival again until early in 1961.

Scientifically, the astronomers call the apparent side-by-side position of the two planets a "conjunction" and this year's phenomenon is known as a "triple conjunction."

Trolley Failure Ties Up Subway Line

Power failure on a three-car subway train was blamed today for a 14-minute delay in the Park st. Kenmore subway line.

Inbound from Beacon st., the front car was unable to pull the rear two cars and proceeded along alone. Later, workmen were able to make repairs and the stalled cars were taken away under their own power.

Roberts Revises Book, Norwood Satisfied

Kenneth Roberts, the author, today set about revising a section of his best selling "Oliver Wiswell" for its next edition.

Roberts had his hero traveling through Norwood in August, 1776, and local historians pointed out that Norwood was not incorporated until 1872.

Selective service officials today reported to the Department of Justice the names of three young men of draft age who were unable, or refused, to show their draft registration cards to inspectors of the motor vehicle registry department.

This Corporal's Woe Is He Tore The Major's Pants

FORT BENNING, Ga., Feb. 15 (AP)—Snapping into action at an officer's command may have been a mistake on the part of Corporal Buster, the dog mascot of the 97th Observation Squadron at Fort Benning.

The command "squads right" was given snappily by Maj. Reuben Kyle. In fact, much too snappily to suit Corporal Buster. He snapped back.

Buster recently was raised in rank at a formal ceremony. Now he may be demoted to a mere private.

He tore the major's trousers.

LIVE TO BE 185? HERE'S HOW

Works on Rabbit, Why Not You?

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 15 (AP)—A chemical—sodium thiocyanate—which might conceivably increase man's life span to 185 years was described here by Dr. William Marias Malisoff, professor of biochemistry at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute.

"On the basis of what we have done with rabbits," he told the Huntington Executive's Club, "we have come to the conclusion that if we can do the same thing for man, he can live a healthy and normal life until the age of 185 years.

"A waxy material, cholesterol, is deposited on the arteries and there is a correlation between age and the amount of cholesterol deposited. After much experimenting, we found a chemical called sodium thiocyanate which would disperse the cholesterol without harming the body.

"In tests on 52 rabbits, we have been able to reverse the symptoms of old age."

10 U. S. Army Skiers Safe

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Feb. 15 (AP)—Then of the United States Army's top skiers reported themselves safe at an Alaska railroad section house today after a four-day trek through a raging blizzard. Their report was made by telephone while an Army bomber and a civilian airplane were engaged in an aerial search.

The ten, testing equipment, left Anchorage with five days' supplies, intending to make a two-day mush through mountain passes, then to retrace their steps. Instead, delayed by the storm, they took four days to make the one-way trip.

Russell Dow, former Dartmouth skier now instructing soldiers here, was in charge of the party.

YUGOSLAVIA WOOED INTO CAMP OF AXIS

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Feb. 15 (AP) — Yugoslavia's premier and foreign minister arrived at noon today from Germany, where they held a three-hour conference with Adolf Hitler yesterday, and went immediately to report to Prince Paul, the regent.

Both Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic refused a statement, but sources close to the premier earlier had indicated that Yugoslavia probably would adopt a course more in accord with German wishes.

From the station the two statesmen drove directly to the palace where they lunched with Prince Paul.

PARLEY LASTS 3 HOURS

Diplomats who requested appointments with the premier were told he would be unable to receive them before "sometime next week" and official quarters likewise refused to shed light on the talks at Hitler's Berghof.

They talked with Hitler and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop for three hours yesterday at Berchtesgaden and informed quarters here said they were believed to have been given terms designed to keep Yugoslavia out of war but probably calling for active participation in the Nazis' "new order" for Europe.

The regency council, an informant said, will meet in a few days to discuss these terms and formulate Yugoslavia's answer.

FIRST KNOWLEDGE

A communique said merely that "conversations concerning questions of common interest were conducted in the spirit of friendly relations existing between the two nations."

A similar communique was issued in Berlin, where informed sources asserted that closer economic co-operation between Yugoslavia and Germany was an important topic on the agenda.

They emphasized that Yugoslavia's copper and especially her bauxite—one of the basic raw materials for manufacture of aluminum—are essential for Germany's war industry.

The consensus in German political circles was that Yugoslavia had broken away from English ties and moved closer to Germany and Italy, "apparently having realized that the future of the country depended on more intimate co-operation with the Axis powers."

Alfonso's Condition Again Reported Grave

ROME, Feb. 15 (AP)—The condition of former King Alfonso XIII of Spain became grave again today after a heart attack this morning, the second in three days.

Doctors said he showed slight improvement this afternoon, but that his condition was still serious. The King's formal abdication from the throne of Spain was published earlier this week.

Japs Discourage U. S. War Rumor

TOKYO, Feb. 15 (INS)—The Japanese government issued a statement today, urging Japanese nationals abroad not to be alarmed by rumors of war between Japan and the United States.

The statement advised Japanese citizens to continue business as usual. It added:

"It is true that the situation between Japan and the United States gives some cause for concern, but it is unwarrantable to jump to the hasty conclusion that the situation of the two countries might be taken over by so bad an eventuality as war.

EYEWITNESS TELLS HOW GERMANS SANK 14 SHIPS

BERLIN, Feb. 15 (AP)—The flotilla of German warships which has reported in the past two days sinking 14 British ships in one Atlantic convoy left one of the vessels afloat to serve as a rescue ship for crews of the others, DNB, official German news agency, said today.

All the merchantmen were armed and defended themselves vigorously, the DNB report said, and while shells fell close to the Germans, no German ship was hit.

A DNB reporter aboard one of the German ships said that the fight was swift and that after the first 10 minutes five British ships were in sinking condition.

SAILORS CAPTURED

The attack started Sunday off Portugal. DNB did not indicate the exact position, nor did the reporter disclose the types of warships which took part.

Presumably the one vessel left to take aboard the crewmen from the sunken ships now is under German escort. The DNB report aboard.

The day before the convoy was sighted the German ships encountered a British freighter which had escaped from another convoy attacked in Portuguese waters.

"We sank it with a couple of well-placed salvos and the spot where it went down was covered with millions of oranges from the cargo," the DNB reporter wrote. "We took the Scottish crew aboard.

"On Feb. 12 we saw three tiny specks on the sea. Then more came in view and soon all 15 ships of the group.

"We shot at the first vessel, which immediately sent up a rocket. So we stopped shooting at that one.

STORY OF TRAGEDY

"Then there was swift action. The rest of the armed merchantmen started firing at us. Then our ships picked out individual steamers. Smoke obscured the view.

"We went down the line of the convoy. Soon, to our rear, lay burning ships. One vessel was torn in two. Scarcely ten minutes after the beginning of the fight, three ships were sunk or sinking. One large steamer turned over completely and floated for a time keel up.

"We got to the end of the convoy and turned for another go at the ships. On account of their useless firing, it was necessary to destroy them.

"Soon there was only one steamer left. Our commander ordered it to be spared for the rescue of the crews."

Survivors of 6 Ships Tell of Dramatic Fight

FUNCHAL, Portuguese Madeira Island, Feb. 15 (INS)—The story of a dramatic battle in which six armed merchant ships—their auxiliary guns blazing to the last—went down under the fire of a large German warship, unaided today after more than 100 survivors were landed at Funchal.

The engagement, lasting half an hour, was fought early yesterday when the high-speed Nazi naval vessel, believed to be one of Germany's 10,000-ton pocket battleships, attacked a big British convoy steaming toward England.

Taken by surprise in the dark northeast of this Portuguese island, every ship in the convoy vigorously returned the fire of the German surface raider which, from a comparatively long range, poured tons of explosive metal into the midst of the merchant vessels.

Though their fire-power and speed were hopelessly outclassed by those of the Nazi warship, the convoy's vessels nevertheless gallantly continued their cannonading until the German raider broke off the engagement and fled.

How many of the officers, seamen and gunners aboard the convoyed ships perished was not known tonight. Four survivors brought to Funchal were wounded so seriously they required hospital care.

FEWER FALSE ALARMS

The thrill seekers who like to see the fire engines roll are reforming. For in 1940, there were but 1366 false alarms compared to 1443 needless runs made in 1939.

British Chutist Raid Halts Italian Trains

molish certain objectives connected with ports" have been dropped on southern Italy, the British ministry of information admitted today.

The British added a further element of complicating mystery to the attempt, which the Italian high command first reported yesterday, by saying that "some of the men have not returned to their base."

This raised speculation over what their "base" might be and the possibility that some of the parachute-saboteurs were still at large in southern Italy, seeking to blow up a vital water supply system, hydro-electric power plants or communications—as Italian dispatches outlined the possible objectives—or port facilities, as indicated by the British.

The ministry of information, refusing further details at present, said little more than that "soldiers dressed in recognized military uniforms have recently been dropped by parachute in Southern Italy."

It was believed that the attack was staged by the Middle East command, with headquarters at Cairo, which is directing warfare in Africa and Greece.

No British authority would say whether the statement that some of the men had not returned "to their base" meant they were still at large seeking to carry out their objectives or that they had been captured.

If the parachutists flew over Italy from ships, a rendezvous by boat or plane to pick them up was one possible explanation of the reference to their failure to return to base.

The area where the landings took place offers plenty of hiding places in wooded regions.

Whole Nazi Invasion Coast Mass of Fire

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP)—The RAF bombers assaulted the German-controlled channel ports shortly after dark tonight and a report reaching London said the French coastline from Dunkirk to Boulogne "appeared to be a mass of fire."

Described by the British as one of the "heaviest attacks" yet made across the channel, this onslaught by the RAF succeeded a series of raids last night on Germany and German-occupied territory.

OIL BASES BLASTED

Oil installations at Gelsenkirchen and the inland port of Duisborg-Ruhrort were attacked in a series of raids on western Germany, an official announcement said.

Fires were started among oil plants and port facilities at both places, the British said, and the docks at Ostend in Belgium also were hammered again.

Observers on the English south coast reported German anti-aircraft guns on the opposite side of the channel put up a heavy barrage last evening, indicating an RAF attack on Nazi invasion ports.

The luftwaffe, meanwhile, stepped up its assault by daylight today after dropping incendiaries last night on London, the midlands and the eastern counties.

A lone Nazi bomber machine-gunned an east coast town this morning, and German aircraft also were reported over northeast Scotland, East Anglia and north England.

CASUALTIES FEW

The government acknowledged the German attacks were "rather more than of late," but said they nevertheless failed to reach large proportions.

"Damage was done at several points, but was nowhere very heavy," a communique said. "Casualties were few."

Squads of fire watchers snuffed out incendiary bombs as fast as they fell in London and no serious fires were reported in the capital during the raid, which lasted from dark until nearly 11 p. m.

The air ministry news service reported, meanwhile, that British fliers have been laying mines along the German and German-occupied coasts "night after night."

DOCKS BOMBED

"We just creep along the Dutch or German coasts, drop our mines and creep out again," an RAF pilot was quoted as saying. "That's all there is to it."

The Air Ministry announced that docks at Calais, France and Den Helder, the Netherlands, were bombed during daylight sorties across the English Channel yesterday.

A supply ship at anchor at Den Helder was hit, the Admiralty declared, and a tanker was set afire off the coast of Norway.

Greeks Press On Despite Snow

ATHENS, Feb. 15 (AP)—The Greeks were reported to have made new gains in their stepped-up offensive against Italians in central Albania, despite a raging snow storm.

Dispatches from the front said the Greek artillery had taken up additional positions after the capture of important heights north of Klisura while the infantry mopped up in the mountains taken after the opening of the offensive Thursday.

British and Greek planes were said to have bombed Italian troop concentrations north of Tepeleni.

Bombs fell on Italian gun emplacements and motor transport columns, on military buildings and other forward line preparations, a communique said of RAF operations.

Dispatches from the front quoted Italian prisoners as saying recent heavy bombings of the Tepelini, Valona, Elbasani and Tirana areas caused panic, and that the Italian command was unable to sustain the morale of the troops.

An earlier communique said the Greeks had seized about 200 prisoners and quantities of arms and materials.

RAF Raids Several Nazi Communities

BERLIN, Feb. 15 (AP)—Three British planes were reported shot down by German fighters near the mouth of the Scheldt river DNB, official German news agency, said today, reporting on a daylight follow-up to RAF flights last night over 22 communities in western Germany.

Germans said only one of the 22 communities was attacked intensively.

A number of civilian dead and wounded were reported. The Germans said there was no military damage.

A reconnoitering British bomber was shot down near Flushing, in the Nazi-occupied Netherlands, this morning, DNB, official German news agency, reported.

The high command said industrial objectives in London together with a number of airports were attacked in German air raids on London last night, "resulting in big fires and explosions."

Informed sources said poor visibility prevented observation of the results of a bomb raid on a steamer west of the Hebrides.

AID BILL FOES WILL DEMAND BRITAIN STATE PEACE AIMS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP)—Senate opponents of the Administration's British aid bill were reported today to be drafting an amendment which would require Britain to state her "peace terms" before receiving any assistance from the United States under the proposed lend-lease program.

The opposition group, led by Sen. Wheeler (D.) of Montana) who said to be in general agreement on the idea that Britain should say what sort of peace she would make if, with American help, she defeated the Axis powers.

Numerous technical difficulties were involved in writing the provision, and even some oppositionists said that it might prove unworkable.

As tentatively drawn, it would call on the State Department to ascertain Britain's peace terms before any American-made war equipment could be released to her.

Administration leaders were working with equal persistence to unify their ranks against changes which they would consider undesirable in the legislation.

With debate on the measure starting Monday—the Senate was in recess today—Chairman George (D.) of Georgia of the foreign relations committee told reporters the committee would not offer any amendments to the bill in addition to those it made earlier this week before recommending the legislation for passage.

But, George said, this would not preclude acceptance of amendments on the floor if the need for alterations became apparent in the course of debate.

The Administration chieftains estimated that their opponents would not be able to muster more than 20 to 25 votes when the final roll is called. The opposition on the other hand claimed the sure support of 29 Senators.

CLARK TO SPEAK

Sen Clark (D.) of Missouri was selected to make the first speech for he opposition. Sen. George will make a brief opening statement in behalf of the measure.

White House lieutenants said that enactment of the legislation would be followed at once by a presidential request for appropriations and contract authority to put the program into operation.

Opposition amendments in addition to the one to require a statement of Britain's peace terms included:

1—A proposal prohibiting the President from transferring any portion of the American Navy to a foreign power.

2—A prohibition against the use of naval vessels to escort merchant convoys.

3—A definite designation of the nations which could be aided under the legislation.

4—A provision stating that "defense articles" transferred to foreign countries would not involve the transfer of American manpower to foreign soil.

Among those attending yesterday's opposition meeting was Sen. Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate's naval committee. It was reported that he probably would offer the amendment to prevent the transfer of any naval vessels to the British.

"KNOX KNOWS"

Although he has not stated his position on the bill, Walsh told reporters that "I attended the meeting and consulted with other senators."

He would not elaborate, but asked what he thought of the expressed opinions of Sec. Knox and Wendell L. Willkie on the transfer of additional destroyers to Britain, he declared:

"When he says that we can not safely transfer any more destroyers, I assume that Knox knows our naval requirements. If he doesn't, who does?"

SOMALILAND PORT FALLS TO BRITISH

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 15 (AP)—The capture of the important port and military center of Chisimaio, in Italian Somaliland, was announced today by the British, who said South Africans marching from Kenya had taken many prisoners and military equipment.

From Chisimaio, which is more than 100 miles up the Indian ocean coast from the Kenya border, the invaders had a good 250-mile coastal road ahead of them, leading to Mogadiscio, the capital and principal port of the colony. They crossed a desolate stretch of roadless desert to reach Chisimaio.

CHISIMAIO POUNDED

By capturing the port at the mouth of the Juba river, the South Africans had placed the most difficult country behind them.

Some of the largest Italian military camps in Somaliland have been reported in the western end of the colony at Chisimaio, and to the north near the junction of the Somaliland, Kenya and Ethiopian borders about Dolo and Lugh.

Italy's other concentrations are reported deeper in the colony, at Brava, next important point in any advance up the coast, Mogadiscio, Illig and Bender Aluia, on the Gulf of Aden.

Naval forces and the South African air force assisted in pounding Chisimaio into submission, the British reported, and a scuttled ship and three damaged ships were found in the harbor. Oil tanks were ablaze.

ITALIAN SHIP SUNK

Advances in a new sector upon the fringes of Premier Mussolini's Ethiopian empire also was reported by the British, who said Queissan (Gezan) had been occupied by Sudanese and an Italian detachment surprised and routed at Asosa.

For its part, the Royal Air Force reported during the day that its bombers had sunk a merchant ship in the central Mediterranean in an attack Thursday night on a convoy of four Italian freighters and two destroyers.

U. S. to Close 2 Offices in Italy

..ROME, Feb. 15 (AP)—It was reported reliably tonight the United States has decided to close its consulates at Naples and Palermo at the request of Italian authorities.

Palermo is a port in Sicily, island off the toe of the Italian boot, and Naples is a Tyrrhenian sea port on Italy's west coast, south of Rome. The only United States consulates south of Rome are in those cities.

The United States embassy would not comment on the reported decision. It was understood, however, to be a sequel to Italy's expulsion of foreign residents from those zones which have been designated as war areas.

The ban on travel for all foreigners, including diplomats and newspapermen, except by special permission, outside places where they are resident also was understood to have been a factor.

INDO ENVOY SEES HULL, PLANS FIGHT

By KINGSBURY SMITH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (INS)—A warning that the Dutch East Indies will fight if attacked by Japan was issued today by Dr. A. Loudon, the Netherlands minister to Washington.

"The Netherlands East Indies will fight any aggressor that attacks them," he said, "following a conference with Secretary of State Hull concerning the Far Eastern situation. "That is the fixed and settled policy of the East Indies government."

Loudon's conference with Hull followed a 45-minute Anglo-Australian consultative meeting at the State Department to discuss the danger of a possible Japanese move against British and Dutch possessions.

Lord Halifax, who represented Great Britain at the tri-power talk, said the United States, Britain and Australia were trying to keep the Far Eastern situation from going to pieces.

The Dutch minister, asked by reporters as to the whereabouts of certain units of the Netherlands fleet, said:

"We are not giving out information concerning our warships."

Dr Loudon waited in the diplomatic ante-rooms of the State Department while Halifax and the Australian minister, Richard G. Casey, consulted Hull.

Meanwhile, the Far Eastern situation and navy strategy in the Pacific were discussed by high naval officials before the House Naval Affairs committee in secret session.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and his aides appeared before the committee on a bill to authorize new naval projects, including strengthening of Pacific defenses.

Fog Delays 2 Liners Here

Thick fog below Cape Cod today delayed the arrival of two ships at Boston by six and 12 hours.

The Eastern Steamship liner Acadia from New York was late in docking here and the Savannah Line S. S. City of Birmingham was 12 hours late on its run from Savannah via New York.

Conditions in Boston Harbor improved sufficiently to permit sailings which had been delayed from late yesterday afternoon.

The trawler Brookline broke down four miles northeast of Graves Light on route to fishing grounds in northern waters and was returned to port by the towboat Eileen Ross.

Mary X. Wants To Bet on Self

that beef I have worked so hard to shake.

Just as I am beginning to plan for my lifetime of streamlining, I get a most interesting letter from a doctor, who gives the following advice:

"Where you are so much in the limelight it will be difficult, but after you reach your goal I should try to get your mind off yourself and foods and reducing as quickly as possible and go on a well planned maintenance diet prescribed by your doctor, with moderate daily setting-up exercises.

"Eating desserts (sweets, etc.) is a habit the same as drinking. This does not mean that you cannot eat plenty of good nourishing food such as potatoes, butter, bread, milk (in moderation) cereals, eggs, etc. You can.

"After all, a potato, medium size, has only 100 calories, no more than a good sized Florida orange . . . The things to avoid are the non-essential highly concentrated foods such as candy, ice cream, rich pastries, soda fountain drinks, alcohol, gravies, cream patties, puddings and mayonnaise.

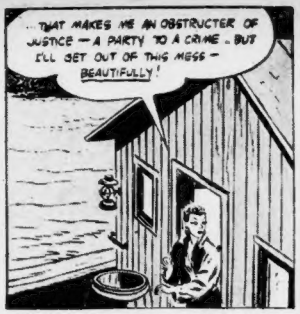
Thank you, doctor, for this sensible letter. I shall be happy to have a baked potato occassionally, although I have not had one in six weeks. And honestly, I'm reconciled to forever renouncing the fattening non-essentials. (Anyone want to bet some folding money?)

Can you see the money fever in Mary's eyes? Looking for a sure thing! Listen fellows, don't bet! We know this gal! She means business!

Winant's Daughter Bride Flying to U. S.

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 15 (AP)—Carlos Valando and his bride, the former Miss Constance Winant, daughter of the new ambassador to Britain, took a plane today for the United States, expecting to arrive in Miami at 5 p. m. tomorrow and Washington at 6 a. m. Monday.

YES, I HELPED KAREK ESCAPE! I GAVE HIM LETTERS TO FRIENDS FOR PROTECTION! I SPIKED YOUR CHANCE OF JAILING A GOOD GUY, BUT YOU WOULDN'T UNDERSTAND THAT — NO!



2 Autoists Nab Hit-Runner In 3 Crashes

Two enraged motorists today chased and captured an alleged hit-run driver whose auto struck three other cars in Memorial Drive, Cambridge.

They overtook the hit-run car about a mile from the scene and caught the driver when he jumped out. He was pinned on his back and held until police arrived.

According to Metropolitan police, the man was operating a car stolen in Cambridge. First his car hit an auto operated by John H. Andelman of Trowbridge st., Cambridge, injuring Mrs. Andelman, police said, and then rammed a second machine driven by Charles Levy of Brighton.

His auto next struck a parked car and continued along Memorial Drive. Andelman and Paul Sherman of Elm st., Chelsea, caught the man.

Taken to the Metropolitan lower basin police station, the man was found to have a long police record and was held for questioning.

RKO Must Pay $7000 in Suit

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15 (INS)—Joseph N. Ermolieff, European film producer, was awarded $7000 damages from RKO-Radio Pictures, by Federal Judge J. F. T. O'Connor.

The judge ruled that "the evidence shows there has been a breach of contract." Ermolieff contended he signed an agreement with the film firm to produce a movie about the French Foreign Legion but that the company suddenly broke off the agreement. Ermolieff asked $1,042,000 damages in his suit.

30 School Children Drown in Belgium

BRUSSELS (via Berlin), Feb. 15 (AP) — Thirty school children drowned today in the Albert Canal at Hasselt when a raft on which they were being ferried turned over. Only five children were rescued. One report said the children had been frightened by a wave and all crowded to one side.

Chinese Trap 200 Japs in Village Feast of Death

HONGKONG, Feb. 15 (AP)—The story of how 200 Japanese cavalrymen unsuspectingly sat down to a feast of death in a Chinese village in southern Honan province was told today by the Central (Chinese) News agency.

During the recent Japanese sweep, the report said, every person left the village except the able-bodied men, who hid themselves. When the Japanese rode in, they found well-laden tables set in the street and, thinking they were being welcomed by the villagers, sat down to feast.

Suddenly the Chinese opened fire from all directions and killed every one of the 200.

$38,695 Holdup In Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Kriezvogel of New York reported to police that three men robbed them early today of jewelry valued at $38,575 and $120 in cash.

The holdup occurred, Kriezvogel said, as he and his wife, returning from a night club, walked up the driveway to their hotel.

All British Ships Must Equip to Get Radio News Flashes

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP)—The Admiralty ordered today that all British ships under 1600 tons carry wireless apparatus capable of receiving British Broadcasting Corporation news reports. Ship crews also were ordered to stand "wireless watch" three times a day "to insure that news bulletins are received." Larger ships already have such facilities.

Apparently the order will establish at least one-way radio contact with ships ranging down to fishing boats.

Vermont Rail Probers Named

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (INS)—President Roosevelt today named a special board of three to investigate the dispute between the management and employes of the Rutland, Vt., railroad. The board includes:

Walter C. Clephane, Washington, attorney who has served on 10 previous boards as an arbitrator of railroad labor disputes.

I. F. Sharfman, professor and political science at the University of Michigan, who has also had previous service as a referee.

Ordway Tead, chairman of the board of higher education of New York City.

Al Shean of Noted Vaudeville Team Married 50 Years

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Al Shean, he of the famous vaudeville team of Gallagher and Shean, observed their golden wedding anniversary today. One week ago the comedian passed his sixtieth year as an actor.

This is another in a series of letters from Britons to friends and relatives in Greater Boston.

From: H. I. Sherwood, Maidstone, Kent, England.

To: Doris Sinewick, 100 C st., South Boston.

Dear Doris:

I had the pleasure of seeing one of your ships that are now with our esteemed navy and a sweet job she looked, too. If they are all the same, it's a nasty headache for someone.

You can never guess how pleased the people of this little island were to hear that Roosevelt has once more been elected for President of the U. S. A. One would almost think he was an Englishman the way his health was drunk time after time.

So you are back at the old job again. I hope you like it, as in a way I shan't be sorry to get back into civvie street again, but not until after this little old job called war is over. I sincerely hope your plans for a vacation in the sunny south work out O. K.

You say it's getting pretty cold and won't be long before you have snow. Well, where the Regiment is now, we had seven inches of it on Saturday and looks like we're getting more.

Say, you sure ask for something when you ask for war news. The only news I could give you would be history by the time you received it, as you will have read it all in your daily papers, perhaps even before I hear it myself.

The one thing I can tell you is that we are still waiting for Jerry's much-vaunted invasion and that the chances of it coming off are about five million to one.

At time of writing, or should I say scribbling, these few lines I am home on leave for seven days of heaven, so I shall have to wait until I return to the regiment before I can tender your wishes, but it gives me the greatest of pleasure to tender on bhalf of my family and the 97th Field Regiment R. A., a Happy New Year to you all at home in the States.

Cheerio for now,

HERB.

GIRL TELLS OF RED RULE ON WPA JOB

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15—A young woman artist, Miss Marie Mitchell, who has been reading about the Krivitsky case, told a remarkable story today of how the Stalinist wing of the Communist party "hounded" her while she was working on the WPA art project in New York city and eventually forced her to flee in terror to Florida.

Her story sounded like a sinister tale about the OGPU (Russian secret police now known as NKVD), but she was quite factual about it. She waited to testify before the Dies committee, but didn't get the chance. That was one of the things, she said, that put her on the Communist blacklist.

HOW REDS CONTROL

"I have been interested in reading about the Krivitsky case," she said.

Miss Mitchell said she was an employe at the WPA art project in New York from 1936 until 1939. There were few Communists on the project when she started but eventually, she asserted, they dominated it by getting men active in the party placed in the personnel department.

"Within a year," said Miss Mitchell, "all executive and administrative positions were held by Communists."

The man who headed her department had been a member of the Communist party for 15 years. We shall call him Mr. Blank.

Miss Mitchell had a girl friend whom we shall call Peggy.

Peggy and Mr. Blank were close friends. Peggy was a Communist, too, one of the "inner circle." She told Miss Mitchell a lot of "inside stuff."

The Communists established an artists' union, a "front" for the party. Artists were forced by threats of discharge to join. Miss Mitchell did. The union, she said, was affiliated with the CIO

Mr. Blank could not hire or fire without consulting the Communist leaders. All work on the project, according to Miss Mitchell, was outlined at Communist meetings.

When several men at the project testified before the Dies committee about subversive activities they were beaten up.

Mr. Blank refused to dismiss Miss Mitchell. A few weeks later he was put in the Youth Administration.

FLED RED TERROR

Miss Mitchell said: "The minute Mr. Blank left I knew my goose was cooked.

"I wanted to testify before the Dies committee. The Communists wanted to get me fired before I did because then my testimony wouldn't sound so valid. Peggy and I quarreled.

"The next thing I knew I was railroaded into the psychopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital. This was Jan. 30, 1939, and I was there two days.

"Next day I telephoned to the Dies committee. They were short of funds and were not taking testimony. Frightened out of my wits, I came to Miami."

The conversation switched to the Krivitsky case and the OGPU theories that had been advanced.

"They'd stop at nothing," declared Miss Mitchell. "But, really, it's not the OGPU that should be blamed for this espionage and what not—it's the Communist party."

LOIS DE FEE is the beauteous six-footer reigning over the Howard's new burlesque.

Howard Stars Amazon Girl

Towering Lois DeFee will be the spotlight queen in the "Cavalcade of Girls" burlesque opening Monday at the Old Howard. She is six feet four, the Amazon star of three-a-day musical extravaganza circles and every inch a beauty and dazzling personality. In fact, in two years the glamorous giantess has become a leading Hub stage favorite.

Other feature dancers in the next Howard show are Conchita, Dimples Dolite, Toni Mitchell, Leona Lewis and Rhoda Wilkins. Top comedians are Billy Foster, Danny Jacobs and George Lewis. In the vaudeville section are The Five Queens, club jugglers; the St. Clair-Durand adagio dance team; Burns and Gale, who are expert in song and dance; Barbara and Jean Lafleur and the Hale, Prince, Hale trio.

Terror Rules Gayety Screen

For horror a la Hollywood, the Gayety is showing "The Devil Bat," with bad man Bela Lugosi, and for melodrama in the modern manner a most intriguing and fascinating film from the English studios, "I Met a Murderer."

This second feature tells a stark and simple story of a young farmer who murdered his shrewish wife. His deed is discovered and he makes his frantic escape.

Then he meets the pretty murder-mystery novelist, Jo, who is traveling about in her own trailer. Jo tries to protect him, and for awhile the hunted man is permitted a dream of release and happiness. But that relentless arm of the law reaches out slowly but inevitably and in a cleverly worked out climax the story reaches its tremendously effective ending.

Three young English people, James Mason, Roy and Pamela Kellino wrote, produced and acted in this unusual thriller, which will prove a pleasant surprise and excellent entertainment for those who like their murder mysteries dished up with a subtlety that's downright brilliant.

JOAN COLLETTE is now the dazzling star of the Globe's burlesque entertainment.

Joan Collette Gets Big Hand

Alluring Joan Collette heads the cast of 70 entertainers in the current Globe burlesque, which got a big hand, with the gingery Joan as the main flash in the pan.

Altogether this new Globe frolic is one of the best yet for lure, fun and classy dancing. Crystal Aymes, Fantasia Lewis and Donne Shaw are featured in the beauty section, along with La Collette, and popular "Peanuts" Bohn is the No. 1 laugh-maker. With Peanuts are Bert Grant, Buddy Dublois, Harry Ryan and Irving Benson

Heading the vaudeville specialists are the Lunatrix, comedy acrobats of high degree. The film features rounding out the banner bill are "The Bucaneer," starring Fredric March, and "Return of the Cisco Kid," starring Warner Baxter.

Reserved seats are now on sale for the Feb. 21 midnight show to usher in Washington's Birthday.

'Thing Called Love' Held Over

"This Thing Called Love," comedy hit starring Melvyn Douglas and Rosalind Russell, is being held for another five days at the State and Orpheum. Last times to see this hilarious and neatly spiced study of honeymoon days as planned by a bride who thinks it is easy to be platonic will be next Wednesday.

They love each other terrifically, these newlyweds, and yet the better half insists in undue restraint until she finds the husband sidling up to the charmer played by Binnie Barnes. There is nothing to the swim and the moonlight talk on the beach, of course, but this thing called love takes a sudden turn in the Russell-Douglas household—and for a time of course.

It's a good cast which the leaders have the assistance of. Allyn Joslin, Gloria Dickson, Lee J. Cobb and Gloria Holden. Alexander Hall directed this sparkling comedy gem.

Another feature held over on the Loew screens is "Nobody's Children," with Erh Fellows and Billie Lee.

'Tobacco Road' To Still Go On

"Tobacco Road," now in its eighth year on Broadway, won't stop its record run just because the screen version of the Dixie drama is coming in. The "last weeks" sign has been out for months.

Clark Gable Film On Olympia Screen

"Comrade X," starring Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr, and "Four Mothers," with the Lane sisters, are opening at the Olympia today.

Louis Bromfield, novelist, is the quiz guest in the "Information, Please" feature at the South Station.

McBride New Boss of State

New manager at Loew's State is Edward H. McBride, who has been in the show business 20 years, starting at the Shubert Teck in Buffalo, and has been on the Loew staff for the past 13 years, first in Buffalo and later in Cleveland, Syracuse and Providence. He is the son of the noted sports writer and referee, Hotspur McBride, and now is a man of note himself in the show world, moving higher up in the Northeastern Loew division directed by Charles E. Kurtzman.

E. H. McBride

Mr. McBride succeeds Fred Greenway, who has gone from the State to manage the Palace Theater in Hartford.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

IN THEIR interesting careers as travellers, adventurers, authors, etc., Christine Reid and Philip Dana Orcutt have collected many interesting souvenirs which will make a miniature museum of the new home they will establish after they become Mr. and Mrs. in the near future . . .

The engagement of the couple is being announced today by Christine's father, Mr. William T. Reid, Jr., and Mrs. Reid, of Brookline and Lake Tahoe, California . . . and is of widespread interest to the many friends of the couple . . .

The future bride was graduated from Miss Winsor's School in 1925 and elected that year to the Junior League . . . Since then she has had all sorts of interesting experiences in mountain climbing both in this country and abroad, white water canoeing, skiing and photography . . .

Just to give you an idea of how much territiory she has covered we'll list her clubs which include the Alpine Club of Canada, the Sierra Club, the White Mountain Ski Runners of which she was one of the founders, Le Club Suisse des Femmes Alpinistes, and the Women's Travel Club . . .

Mr. Orcutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dana Orcutt of Boston, graduated from Noble and Greenough School and was a member of the class of 1922 at Harvard . . . He served overseas with the American Field Service during the last war and is the author of "The White Road of Mystery"—dedicated to the division with which he served . . .

He, too, has had a varied and interesting career and belongs to the Boston Society of Architects, the Military Order of the World War, the Harvard Club of Boston, and is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society and of the Society of Antiquaries of London . . . No date has been announced for the wedding.

Jean Farnsworth Is Bride Today

BEFORE AN ALTAR banked with white gladiolas and evergreens, Miss Jean Farnsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold V. Farnsworth of Winchester is being married to Percy Allen Goodale, Jr., in the Winchester Unitarian Church this evening . . .

Rev. Paul Harmon Chapman is officiating and the bride's father is giving her in marriage. The reception is to be at the Farnsworth residence . . .

The bevy of bridal attendants is headed by Alice Elizabeth Neiley of Bronxville, N. Y., cousin of the bride. Another cousin, Emma F. Neiley is a bridesmaid together with Mrs. Oliver Andrews, of South Byfield, Mrs. Morrison Bump of Cambridge, Janet Fuller and Evelyn H. McGill of Winchester and Aileen Ward of Summit, N. J. . . .

The bride is wearing a gown of bluish pink satin with a pink veil falling from a heart shaped cap. Her flowers are white orchids. Dusty rose faille, with a halo bonnet to match fashions the maid of honor's costume, and the bridesmaids are wearing blue. All are carrying bouquets of pansies, anenomes and gerbera . . .

Following the honeymoon in Florida the newlyweds will live at Elmwood Ave., Winchester . . .

Relief Ball Souvenir Program

AFTER THE BALL IS OVER, subscribers will certainly have something to remember it by . . . Nat Saltonstall and Sargent Collier are working like beavers on a novel souvenir program for the British War Relief Ball at the Copley Plaza next Thursday . . .

The program will be filled with cartoons and articles by nationally famous artists and writers, pages of signatures and, of course, ads from our leading merchants . . .

Polly Cotter and Eleanor Frothingham are Nat's right hand men in the ad-getting drive and spend their lunch hours at the Ritz or Copley selling signatures for the book . . . (you pay a small fee to have your autograph appear with all the other prominent local lights) . . . Also getting ads and signatures are Mrs. Richard Sears, Jr., Mrs. Edward L. Francis, Patricia Bayne and Charles Curran . . .

DEBUTANTE Martha Turner smiles at her mirror reflection as she lists names of subscribers to the forthcoming British War Relief Ball. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Turner, Martha is a popular member of the Junior League and Vincent Club, and one of the large bevy of debs helping with plans for the ball on the 20th.

Musicale Aids War Homeless

English women and children, left homeless after recent Nazi bombings, will be the beneficiaries of a brilliant musicale to be held next Wednesday evening at Mt. Ida Junior College in Newton. The artists will be Mme. Jeanne Defauw, Belgian pianist, who is making her American debut at this time, and Allessandro Niccoli, violinist, who will be accompanied by Mme. Mercier of Cambridge.

The affair is sponsored by the Newton committee of the British War Relief Society.

Among the many music lovers planning to attend are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin B. Perry, Mrs. Carl J. Thornquist, Miss Jane Johnson, Mrs. Russell Harmon, Mrs. Howard Gilmore, Mrs. A. Dean Norris, Mr. and Mrs. Newton A. Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Gallagher, Miss Loyisa W. Dana, Mrs. William T. Foster, Dr. and Mrs. Duncan Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Jamieson, Mr. and Mrs. Metcalf Melcher, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Ray Anderson Eusden, Dr. and Mrs. C. K. Reyman and Mrs. Everett Kent.

Also Mr. and Mrs. George Waterman, Mrs. Frederick White, Mrs. Donald Baker, Mrs. Curtis N. Smith, Miss Fannie Adams, Gen. and Mrs. William Harrison Perry, Dr. and Mrs. J. Leroy Conel and Mrs. Shirley Kearns.

Society Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson of Groton have been visiting at the Biltmore in New York this week while attending the Westminster Dog Show and other social festivities.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Harrison Trowbridge, who have been visiting at the Biltmore in New York for several days, return to their home in Wellesley Farms this week-end.

Ballet Russe Tuesday

Opening Will Aid Greeks

Names prominent in social and civic circles of Boston will be written on place cards for the large dinner party which Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Cabot, Jr., are giving Tuesday evening preceding the opening performance of the original Ballet Russe at the Opera House.

The opening night performance will benefit the Greek War Relief Society of which Mr. Cabot is chairman. His guests, gathering at the home of his mother, Mrs. Henry B. Cabot of Chestnut Hill, will include the Greek Consul and Mrs. Alexis S. Liatis, the British Consul Hugh Alexander Ford, Mrs. Erichsen Pengra, Mr. Henry W. Minot, chairman of Metropolitan Boston for the Greek War Relief Society, and Mrs. Minot; Mrs. Beachamp Seymour of Newbury, Berkshire, England.

Also from England will be Mrs John Sturgis of London, and other guests will be Mr. and Mrs. L. Cushing Goodhue, Miss Mary Lee and Mrs. Julian Coolidge.

During intermission at the Opera House ballet lovers may sample authentic Greek refreshments which will be served by a fashionable committee in the gayly decorated supper room. Mrs. Raphael Demos and Miss Margot Warner of Cambridge are in charge of the Greek musical program which will entertain guests during the supper period. Students of Peter Dvilniewicz at the Museum of Fine Arts are planning the decorations as one of their school projects.

Fashion Show Plans Made

The first spring plans of the New England Farm and Garden Association include a pre-view of the latest fashion creations at a luncheon and fashion show to be held on March 5th. Following luncheon in the Louis XIV Ballroom of the Hotel Somerset, a bevy of attractive models will display Easter Parade fashions.

The show will benefit the Association philanthropies including the Farm and Garden Shop on Newbury street, which markets outstanding homemade products of country women, and the scholarship fund which provides professional training at Massachusetts State College for selected young women.

Mrs. Hubert L. Carter, chairman of the luncheon-fashion show, is being assisted by Mrs. Oliver Andrews, Mrs. James D. Colt, Mrs. John H. Cunningham, Mrs. H. Bigelow, Mrs. Joe W. Gerrity, Mrs. Morris F. LaCroix, Mrs. James M. Newell, Mrs. James M. Newell, Jr., Mrs. Samuel J. Newman, Mrs. Stephen Paine, Mrs. Charles F. Rowley, Mrs. Ernst M. Parsons, and Mrs. Preston T. Stephenson.

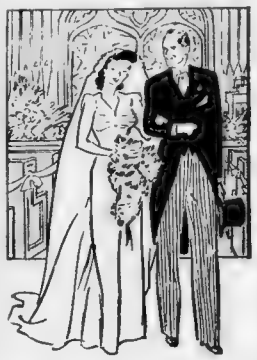
Wedding Plans Made Easier

So you've said yes, and now there's a wedding to plan for!

Shall it be formal or informal—a church or home affair? Up to you to decide which you prefer and can best afford. Both can be lovely.

At a formal flower-decked church affair you wear the traditional sweeping bridal gown and veil and carry a bouquet or prayer-book. The groom wears morning coat and striped trousers in the daytime, white tie and tails in the evening. And of course your attendants dress in key—bridesmaids in flowing dresses, ushers and best man in attire like the groom's.



THE FORMAL WEDDING
Plan All the Details

Your family will have expenses connected with the church to pay for—organist's and sexton's fees and floral decorations. And you're expected to send engraved invitations to all your friends.

But an informal home wedding can be charming, too. You may wear a flatteling afternoon dress and hat, perch a corsage on your shoulder. The groom wears a business suit and the one attendant you're each allowed will dress informally, too.

Bowls or baskets of flowers from your own garden, perhaps, create a lovely bridal atmosphere, while a friend may play the wedding march. You invite guests by personal note and send announcements to those you haven't room for.

What is the etiquette of the bridal reception? What refreshments to serve? The answers to all your wedding questions are given in our 40-page booklet, How to Plan Your Wedding. Advises on dress etiquette, budgeting expenses. Gives correct form for announcing engagement, for formal, informal and second weddings.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, How to Plan Your Wedding, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name address and the name of booklet.

All of these forms of introduction are correct: "My I present?" . . . "May I introduce?" . . . "I should like to introduce" . . . "This is" . . . "Mr. Brown, Mr. Robinson" . . . "Do you know?" . . . "Have you met?"

The first three are properly used for formal introductions. The second two—using "This is," or mentioning only the names—are correct for less formal introductions. And the last two, the "chatty" form of introduction, are the most informal.

Cooking

It's National Cherry Week

By MARTHA LEE

"NATIONAL Cherry Week" will be observed from Feb. 15 to 22. But cherry dishes are by no means limited to this particular week any more than they are to the fresh cherry season, for annually a major portion of the crop is "put up" for use any time of the year.

In cooking with cherries, the first thing to check up on is sweetness. Both canned and frozen cherries are put up with varying amounts of sugar added. Since most recipes are made on the basis of unsweetened cherries, they may need to be modified.

The favorite role of the sour cherry is in pie—the crust generously filled and the filling neither too juicy nor to stiff. The same filling used in pie can also be used in cherry tarts, which make a perfect party dessert because they are so easy to serve. An easy way to make tart shells is to bake pie crust dough over the back of custard cups or individual muffin tins.

To insure a crisp under crust in cherry pies, partly bake the crust first, then pour in the slightly thickened filling and bake in a hot (450 deg. F.) oven for 20 to 30 minutes longer.

Like any fruit that can be cooked, there are hundreds of ways to use cherries. They may be baked in dumplings made with biscuit or pastry dough. They may be deep fat fried in fritters. They may be put in puddings of all sorts—tapioca, betty, bread, or steamed. Use them in mousse made in the refrigerator or in ice creams with a custard base. Cherry sauce makes something special out of plain blanc mange, plain ice cream, shortcake, or plain cakes.

CHERRY BREAD PUDDING

1 No. 2 can pitted sour cherries
4 cups soft bread cubes
2 eggs
2 tbsp. butter
3 cups liquid (cherry juice and milk)
1 cup sugar
Dash of cinnamon

Butter casserole. Drain cherries and combine them with the soft bread cubes. Arrange cubes and cherries in alternate layers in casserole. Beat eggs slightly. Add sugar, cinnamon and cherry juice, plus enough milk to make a full 3 cups of liquid. Pour this combination over the casserole. Dot top with pieces of butter. Bake in slow oven (300 deg. F.) for 1½ hours. Serve hot with either hard sauce or slightly whipped cream. Makes 8 servings.

Because cherries both taste good and look colorful they are excellent in an upside-down cake. The following recipe has been tested in the kitchens of the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

CHERRY UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

First make up a cherry mixture according to the following method

1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) red sour cherries
½ cup cherry juice
1 cup sugar
1 cup water

Drain the juice from the cherries; to ¼ cup of the juice, add the cup of sugar and the water. Boil until the mixture spins a thread. Add the drained cherries and boil rapidly until this mixture spins a thread. Melt 1 tablespoon of butter in a heavy 9-inch frying pan. Pour in the candied cherries and allow the mixture to cool. Then add the following cake batter.

¼ cup butter or other fat
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1 egg, well beaten
1½ cups sifted soft-wheat flour
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ cup milk

Cream the butter, add sugar and vanilla. Stir until the mixture is light and fluffy. Add egg. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt together. Add this alternately with milk to the first mixture. Stir to mix well and pour over the cherries. Bake in a moderate oven for about 45 minutes. Loosen the sides of the cake, turn it out carefully upside down. If the fruit sticks to the pan, lift it out and place it on the cake. Serve with whipped cream.

Crochet an Underarm Bag

IT'S ABOUT time the crocheters had another break . . . so here are some directions for a clever little under-arm bag. You may make it small enough to be a decorative purse kit, if you wish. And if there is an ambitious young crochet beginner in your house, start her off on something as enchanting and useful as this . . . she'll get a big kick out of it! You'll use it with summer sports things, which can take a bit of handwork very nicely. In dark colors, it will be good with your spring suit. The smart patterned effect is shown up in this one by having a dark fabric beneath the crocheting itself. For your set of directions, just write Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

YOU WANT love, life's biggest adventure. Love, you are sure, would put adventure into your life, and beauty and wonder, if you could find it.

So all your life you have been looking for a love which would do that for you, but you have never found it. Even though you may be married and seemingly happy, you still have a secret feeling that you have never found love—not the perfect love for which you sought. Yet somewhere it must exist! Why, then, have you never come upon it in all your searchings?

BECAUSE YOU SEARCHED FOR THE WRONG THING.

You sought a certain, concrete experience. You had a definite notion about that experience. It was to be different from all other experiences. It was to have different symptoms, different reactions. It was to be an entirely new department in your life, and you were to stumble upon it unexpectedly, as Aladdin stumbled upon his treasure cave.

Nor did these notions about love seem fantastic to you. Everybody you knew had exactly the same notions. All the books you read, all the movies and shows, repeated the same theme. Such was love. That was how love came. And, having come, you could expect love to accomplish any miracle.

Indeed, if it didn't accomplish miracles, you could be pretty sure it wasn't love.

AND SO you went out looking for this marvel, waiting, with breathless heart, for the magic to begin. But there is no magic, yet. Will you find it tomorrow, perhaps? Or the day after that?

NO, YOU WILL NEVER FIND SUCH A LOVE AS THAT. IT DOES NOT—IT CANNOT—EXIST.

Love is not a single, unique, isolated, wonder-working sensation.

Love is not one experience, one desire, one fulfillment. Love is many experiences, many desires, many fulfillments and frustrations, all serving under one flag.

What do you bring to love?

You think you bring a blazing heart but actually you do nothing of the sort. You bring, instead, all the tangled ends, all the muddled purposes and unsatisfied hungers of your life.

You are not really looking for a perfect mate. You are looking for someone who will lighten your loneliness, understand your cussedness, satisfy your desire, flatter your vanity, rest your weariness, alibi your cowardice, stimulate your laziness and help you wrangle your way through the bewildering and humiliating confusions of life.

All of these needs are in you. They are in you all the time. You can never be freed from them. And you bring them all to love—for the answering.

BUT HOW can Love answer all these needs?

Some of them, indeed, do not deserve to be answered. Many of them are entirely your own job, which if you have an ounce of spunk, you could settle for yourself.

Some of them are beyond any man's answering. They are part of the soul's sad mystery.

Obviously, love should not and cannot answer needs such as these. And so they go unanswered, and after the first infatuation has worn off you say to yourself

"This isn't love after all. It isn't doing the things I thought it would do. There's something wrong."

There is something wrong. But it's in YOU, not in love.

Should the salutation on a "thank you" note read: Dear Mrs Smith or Dear Lieutenant and Mrs. Smith?

The salutation of a "thank you" note should be "addressed" to the wife: Dear Mrs. Smith or Dear Mary. Of course, in the body of the letter, thanks are included to the husband. For example, "Thank you for the beautiful print that you and your husband (or 'you and Jim') sent us."

You Can Be Beautiful

Your Milk Bath Is Ready!

By ARLINE GOULD

BATHE IN MILK . . . for a beautiful skin . . . and shoulder have to be beautiful if you're to wear one of these decolletable white tulles which have stepped out of the debutante class and are among the most chic and sophisticated evening things with their long, slim torso lines and bell-shaped skirts.

Now this advice could easily have been given five hundred or a thousand years ago . . . and it certainly was, for history proves it . . . but not until this year of 1941 could it be done without running up colossal bills! The first real, all-milk bath that science has ever successfully presented has arrived . . . and in it is 70 per cent dehydrated milk . . . count that up in gallons and see what you get!

What's more, this is glamorously scented with hyacinths . . . so you can bathe in hyacinths and milk quite literally!

We don't need to go on and on about what milk can do for your skin . . . its is nature's supreme refiner of texture and whitener . . . and it gives a stainy gloss and a softness . . . and what more beautiful attributes could a feminine skin have?

This new milk bath is also a foam bath . . . it will pile up gustsome bubbles in your tub . . . restful yet energizing, too. It comes in a cute crystal milk pail, complete with a silvery measuring shovel . . . gralanded with pink and blue posies.

If you'd like information on this brand new 70 per cent dehydrated milk foam bath . . . phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Pattern 9656 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards 35-inch fabric and 1½ yards rickrack.

To get this pattern send 15c to Boston Evening American, Pattern Department 232 West 14th st., New York, N. Y. Ten cents additional will bring you our newest Pattern Book.

Etiquette For Blessed Event

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are expecting a "blessed event" soon, and I wish you would be so kind as to answer some questions about birth announcements.

1—How soon after the baby is born should the announcements be sent out?

2—How should the names of the parents be written on the cards? Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, or John and Mary Smith?

3—Should the return address be written on the envelopes? Or would that look too much as if a gift were expected? We have just recently moved here, and very few of our friends know our new address.

4—If we have a son, I want to name him after his father, but I am in doubt as to the proper form. His father is John, Jr. Would the baby be John 3rd, or would the father be considered as senior and the baby be called, John, Jr.?

5—When gifts are brought to the hospital or to my home, should they be opened while the giver is there, or be put aside and opened later?

P. R.

1—Usually telegrams telling of the baby's birth, or notes written by someone in the family, are sent immediately to close relatives and intimate friends. Then, if either formal or informal announcements are sent, they are mailed whenever it is convenient.

2—When informal announcements are sent, with the names of the parents written in the space at the end of the card, the names should be written in the form of signatures; that is, with the first names, Mary and John Smith.

3—In your case it would be especially important to write your new address on the flap of the envelopes. Naturally your friends would like to be informed as to where they can reach you for a message of congratulation. Don't be concerned that this will mean to your friends that they will be expected to send a gift—an announcement doesn't mean that.

4—I take it that your husband's father is living, and therefore he is to be considered the senior John. Your husband is John, Jr., and, if you name your baby after your husband, your baby would be John 3rd.

5—The natural thing for you to do, since it will immediately register your enthusiasm and appreciation, is to open a gift while the giver is there.

Should Parents Hang Around?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Recently an old schoolmate of mine visited me literally came to say goodbye, as she was joining the Army. I know him quite well, and my parents often heard me speak of him. Here's the problem: Should my parents have stayed in the room with us after the introduction? They not only remained in the room, but read the entire paper and entirely ignored my visitor. I'm afraid my boy friend was hurt.

JO ANN

Perhaps your parents didn't care to have anything serious injected into the farewells of your soldier boy in staying in the room and reading the evening paper when he said goodbye. If there had no such object in view, it was tactless, to say the least, not to let you youngsters have a moment alone together.

Far Eastern Crisis—With units of the Japanese fleet firmly based in the waters of Siam and French Indo-China during negotiations between the warring countries, the shadow of war is cast by the Rising Sun on Singapore, great British naval base in the Far East (see map). Today, goaded by Berlin, Tokyo is reported preparing to attack this Gibraltar of the East, and threaten Australia with its sparsely settled and fertile lands . . . planning a war with the two-fold purpose of adding new lands to the Mikado's domain and of lessening American aid for Britain. The Axis feels that such a Japanese threat in the Far East would force mobilization of United States forces, distract attention from the European theater of war. MISS CATHRINE CURTIS, chairman of the Women's National Committee to Keep America Out of War, appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the other day to support the aims of her organization.

Pursuing this purpose, she opposed the British-Aid Bill on the grounds that it would involve the United States in the European War and is therefore objectionable to the majority of American women.

MISS CATHRINE CURTIS
Asks Why President Seeks Powers if He Plans Not to Use Them

Since the percentage of American opinion opposing involvement in war, as revealed by all available polls, is not less than eighty-five per cent, and since the percentage of women opposing involvement in war is uniformly higher than that figure, it is a fair assumption that Miss Curtis DOES represent the women of America.

Her viewpoint should therefore be thoughtfully considered by the Senate.

Certainly if the people of America, and especially the women of America, do not want war, the Senate should be at least as peaceably inclined.

Of course, the Senate has been told by observers and authorities other than Miss Curtis that the British-Aid Bill will NOT involve us in war.

And if the Senate is disposed to keep us out of war by getting us into it—as the House of Representatives has already voted to do—it will probably vote as the House did.

However, in doing so, the Senate must leave unanswered several pertinent and important questions posed by Miss Curtis.

She inquired why this bill is necessary, since the specific forms of aid to Britain it proposes are already possible under existing law, and in fact are already being extended.

What the bill does do, said Miss Curtis, is to extend war-making powers to the President which are not specified in existing law.

"They say our President will not make use of such powers," said Miss Curtis. But—

"If he does not intend to use them, why is he seeking them?"

It is said in behalf of the President that he will not use American merchant ships for transport of war cargoes into the war zones, and that he will not use American naval vessels for convoy duty.

Why, then, does the Senate enact a measure giving the President the power to so use American ships and war vessels?

Let the Senate remember that the President once said taxes and debts and deficits were ruinous burdens on the country, and thereafter caused such burdens of taxation and debt to be imposed upon the country as it had never borne before.

Perhaps the President, professing intent to keep America out of war, would be no more successful in avoiding ruinous war than he was in avoiding ruinous taxation and debt.

If the President, having powers he does not intend to use, should later use them—to authorize war zone shipping and convoys as the British-Aid Bill would empower him to do—does any one imagine it would not be true, as Miss Curtis says, that:

"Then we are in this war—and under a military dictatorship."

SHIP BUILDING has become one of our busiest industries.

The New England Council announces that 167 vessels valued at $1,122,391,000 are in the process of construction in this area.

Eight private shipyards are working on 127 ships worth $916,666,000, while the Boston and Portsmouth Navy Yards are building 40 ships valued at $205,725,000.

Moreover, two business groups are seeking establishment of shipyards in Fall River and New Bedford to provide jobs for 12,000 men.

This is a GOOD START.

But it is only a small part of the much that ought to be done in the restoration of our once world-famous shipbuilding industry.

Coastal cities should reopen all shipyards and create new ones.

Thousands of vessels that have been sunk in the European war will have to be replaced in the next decade.

The job of replacing them can be largely a New England enterprise if we prepare ourselves for it NOW.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Friday — Yesterday afternoon our Luxemburg guests enjoyed with me a short musical program given by the Chamber Music Guild Quartet and two young English singers, Miss Viola Morris and Miss Victoria Anderson, whose fresh young voices seemed to bring spring into the room.

In the evening, a number of members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, with their wives, came to dinner and afterwards the moving picture "Philadelphia Story" was shown.

I had seen this as a play, but Katharine Hepburn is as charming in the movies as she is on the stage and off the stage. Everybody else in the cast is excellent and the whole picture was received with great enthusiasm by our guests.

I was glad to find that apparently very few people had seen it before.

I have been sent a very useful book, called "Pitfalls in English" by Sophie C. Haida. The person sending it to me, I am sure, has found that I need to study my own language. I suppose many of us forget any grammar we may have learned in our childhood and speak our own language almost entirely by ear. If we had to stop to think of the rules, conversation would be slow.

THE DIFFICULTY in a country as big as ours, is that our ear becomes accustomed to usage which varies with the locality. In addition to that, some of us may not have had the opportunity of learning the correct usage when we were young.

I shall try to study this book carefully, but I feel quite sure that there will always be both grammatical errors in what I write and mistakes in pronunciation in what I say.

The best I can do is to try to correct my errors and be humbly grateful to anyone who gives me any assistance.

I have just received from the Roosevelt Memorial Association their new publication, "The Theodore Roosevelt Cyclopled," edited by Mr. Albert Bushnell Hart and Mr. Herbert Ronald Ferleger. Mr. William Allen White had written the foreword, and there are excerpts from people both here and abroad, praising Theodore Roosevelt as a man, writer, and statesman.

MY UNCLE made a deep impression on me. I was enormously pleased when William Allen White once said to me at dinner that my voice reminded him of his old friend, Theodore Roosevelt.

I did not tell him how much I wished I had some of the other qualities which have made Theodore Roosevelt one of our unforgettable personalities.

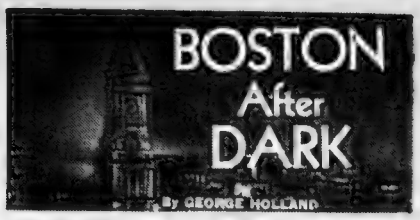
SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE—Nazi guns permitting—is a church which has a plaque, underneath a large window, reading: "Repaired Through the Gift of the United States Navy." The church had been bombed in 1914. And this is the story of the repairs . . . An American, driving his car along the winding roads of France, was startled when a man tried to dart across its path. The man was knocked down, and the American hurried him to a doctor where the slight injuries were treated . . . The next day the American learned that the man was employed at the village church. He went there, and offered to pay the damages . . . "No, thank you," he was assured, "it was not your fault." The American insisted upon making some payment. He saw the gaping holes in the roof, and the broken stained-glass windows. "We cannot afford to repair it," the American was told. And so he arranged for the repairs, identified himself—and that's why the plaque was erected, in gratitude to the U. S. Navy" . . . The man was the then Asst. Secretary of the Navy—now thrice elected President of the United States.



FRANK LEAHY'S LEAVE-TAKING of Boston College, which gave him his big chance, was a chief topic of conversation along the Rialto . . . In one of this column's infrequent "night club polls," the dominant sentiment seemed to be one of sympathy for the Eagles, whose wings—the opinion was—have been clipped at a crucial time.

TO THE QUESTION: "Should Frank Leahy have left Boston College after signing a long-term contract less than a month ago?" nine of ten persons who were interviewed in three leading night clubs responded with a "nay" vote . . . Only three of the interviewees were acquaintances of this department.

"WHERE WAS NOTRE DAME when Leahy was buried at Fordham?" was a counter-question, in a somewhat angry mood, offered as a reply to our own question . . . "Boston College picked him up when he was unknown," said another, "and that kind of pioneering is entitled to some reward." . . . When we pointed out that the Sugar Bowl, and national recognition as a football power, must be viewed in the light of value given for value received, this gentleman had a ready answer.

"THAT MAKES IT WORSE—like returning to rice and beans after eating pompano," he declared. (He had been a customer at the B. C.-Tennessee game, and probably had become pompano-conscious while in New Orleans.)

The only individual who thought that Coach Leahy had "done the right thing" was a man from Natick . . . "Any man has a right to better himself, contract or no contract," said this utilitarian.

A HIGH TRIBUTE TO COACH LEAHY'S ability was implied in nearly all the answers, although in several instances even this recognition of Frank's talent was bestowed grudgingly . . . "They won't be able to get another coach like him!" . . . He'll be impossible to replace! . . . It will set the college back in football because of its psychological effect!" These were some of the opinions.

A REMOTE EFFECT of the Leahy departure for the South Bend campus probably will be a sudden depression of the boom toward getting Boston a municipal stadium . . . The "defense effort" was the first setback for such a project, but the plan was much more advanced than the general public has been permitted to suspect.

THE LANCASTER THEATER, opposite the North Station, is the current stronghold of the hardy Greater Boston "amateurs" . . . The policy of making Wednesday night an "amateur night" each week was instituted recently by Manager Joe Klein . . . The lure of cash prizes is strong, but the plaintive attempt on the part of scores of boys and girls to win "recognition" for their talent is paramount . . . And the customers are flocking.

NOT ONE MASSACHUSETTS racetrack will pay a stock dividend for 1940, we hear . . . Several Bay Staters, by the way, are among the frustrated promoters and stockholders of the Monmouth county horse-track in New Jersey . . . This oval was expected to launch parimutuel betting in the Hague state this year . . . Lack of money has stalled the project, and Jersey racing may not get under way this year.

THIS IS FORTUNATE for horse-racing in New England, turf experts seem to think . . . Jersey tracks would have been forced to compete with Suffolk, Gansett and Rockingham in getting horses . . . The New York tracks are prepared to be of valiant, if unintentional, assistance to the New England courses in blocking rivals in an adjacent state . . . In a fight for high class platers and handicap horses, the New Yorkers can well afford to boost their purses—or to double them in opposition to Jersey, as they promised to do.

Budd Schulberg

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 15—Young Budd Schulberg is certainly a son that a father may be proud to claim—and don't think B. P., veteran producer, isn't thrilled over his boy's achievements. Some time ago Budd and Martin Berkeley sold Sam Goldwyn a story called "City Without Men" and now Sam has sold it to Columbia for $15,000—a big price to be paid for an unproduced story. And what to me is most interesting, is that there is a chance that Budd's own father, B. P. Schulberg, will produce his son's story. B. P. is at Columbia.

Speaking of the Schulbergs, I haven't read Budd's book "What Makes Sammy Run?" because the galley proofs which were sent to me were lost in the Christmas rush. However Bennett Cerf, the publisher, promised to send me an advance copy and I am eagerly awaiting it.

It was, however, the first time they have lined together since they separated and I must say Arthur was devotion itself to the attractive actress.

Here's hoping that they will reconcile.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED how many film people were upset over the death of Laddie, the sick dog, flown out from Kansas City to be with his master, Everett Scott, at Camp Ord. I was dining with Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers when we heard the news of Laddie's death and Mary said: "Laddie didn't die in vain. Everyone who owns a dog will be better and kinder to his pet."

Laddie made us all realize the deep devotion our dogs give us and that the only thing they ask in return is a little attention from us. Paulette Goddard wired Sergeant Scott, saying how sorry she was and said if he thought it possible for any other pet to take Laddie's place she wanted to send him another dog.

Edgar Allan Woolf, whose Pico is famous, wept at the news. And Marion Davies, whose Gandhi is her shadow, telephoned several times to ask if I had heard any more news of Laddie.

Dagwood Gets His Wires Crossed

Declaration of Independence

By Alma and Paul Ellerbe

IT WAS that enchanting thing, an absolutely perfect New England summer day, and Dorothy Conderman wanted to do something about it. Doing something about it meant, of course, shooting off with Bridge in the new convertible coupe his father had given him as a graduation present: Bridgeman Mapes, who lived over on the next hilltop.

Practically all the nicer houses in Bentham Four Corners were on hilltops. She had fallen in love with Bridge in kindergarten, had alternately disliked and adored him all through grade school, and, now that he had become a man, had discovered him all over again.

He had been home three weeks now from college, and the question in Dorothy Conderman's mind—almost to the exclusion of everything else—was: Why doesn't he ask me to marry him?

She had no more doubts now where she herself was concerned. Her question had a core of excitement and importance beyond anything she had ever known. Because behind it loomed the next biggest thing in her life: her adjustment to her mother. Would her mother let her—could her mother let her—could she force her mother to let her—marry Bridgeman Mapes?

She stood on the wide, rambling old front porch and her heart leaped when she saw the flash of Bridge's car. In another minute it would be over here in front of her and Bridge pushing the door open and inviting her in with that pleasant, slow, somewhat cryptic smile that was so like her father's.

For a long time she hadn't been able to figure out either her father or Bridge. Had felt that she either liked both of them better than anybody else in the world, or else that she was afraid of them and was never going to be able to get close to either of them. Her mother, of course, had had a lot to do with it.

"She lives your life for you," Bridge had said. "And—incidentally—she doesn't like me. She thinks I'm going to want to marry you." (That was while they were still in their early teens.) "And probably I am. And she thinks that just possibly you might be willing—and she'd hate that, because she'd have to share you."

A LOYAL DAUGHTER

"You don't know a darned thing about her!" Dorothy had said.

"I don't know her as well as you do, but I see her in better perspective. Do you know that she doesn't like your father?"

They had their first important quarrel on account of that question—a bitter one.

That she should lump them together in her thoughts, Bridge and her father, dated back to a bright Winter day when the two had stood side by side bareheaded in the sun, their faces turned away from her at the same angle.

Her mother had come out of the house and said something gentle and patient and a little saintly to her father, and the two strong quiet reserved faces had turned suddenly into the bright sunshine and frozen into the same expression of withdrawn untouchableness. It startled her. Their reaction to her mother, one so closely concerned and the other not at all, was as that of one person.

Several years later Bridge had provoked their second important quarrel: and about the same thing.

"What's the matter with your mother?" They were skating together.

"She's ill. She's always been ill. She's very delicate and sensitive. And very fine," she added defiantly.

"I don't mean that—what's she doing to your father? Why has she got it in for him? And—in a much milder fashion—for me?"

Her heart stopped and she went stiff all over. Half of her wanted to say, "Oh, Bridge, I don't know why she's got it in for him! For God's sake talk it out with me!" But the other half of her won.

"My mother is the sweetest, finest, loveliest person I know. She hasn't got it in for anybody. You must be crazy.

"Look here, kid, if you ever get a better friend than I am, throw everything overboard, see, and tie to him. That kind of talk would have been all right in 1890, but it's off center in 1940, and it doesn't get us anywhere. I want to know!"

"I'll talk to you, Bridge, about anything else on earth, but"—she turned her quiet gray eyes upon him—"I'll never talk to you or anyone else alive about that. And if you try to make me—Well, you mustn't, ever."

And just two weeks ago—"She's a possessor," Bridge had said. "She wants all of you. You'll have to break loose if you ever get loose. Your father's done it, and she's never forgiven him."

They had their third important quarrel then. In fact, it was the making-up process that had made her sure he was going to ask her to marry him.

And so when she saw his car flash out of the garage something flashed inside of her and she opened her lips to shout to him. But just then her mother stepped out of the side door, and she didn't shout. She could tell by the sound of her mother's step and her sigh, even before she turned, that the kind of a day it was had changed in the twinkling of an eye.

"Your father has gone to Melton again." Her mother said it in that gentle, pained and slightly saintly voice that hurt Dorothy more than anything in the world.

HIS REAL LIFE

Melton! The word had come now to be stained with pain for both of them. Dorothy's father was a rich man. He owned two factories, one here and the other in Melton; so that he had to divide his time between the two places, and he had rented a little furnished house there all for himself. He had had it now several years. Much of his real life was spent there.

"It's given me one of those blind headaches," her mother said, just as Bridge's lovely flashing new car came gliding up the hill and stopped beside the two of them; had she seen it start? "Will you come in, dear, and pull the shades and fix me some aromatic spirits of ammonia and get me that medicine Dr. Atkins prescribed, and rub my temples? I can scarcely see my hand before my face"—holding it out and peering at it pitifully.

"Mrs. Conderman," Bridge said, "it's a rotten shame about your headache. I certainly am sorry."

"Thank you, Bridge. Fortunately I have Dorothy. She——"

"I've something important to say to Dorothy," Bridge said. "Could you let her go with me,"

"While I'm ill?" she said in a shocked tone.

"Yes," he said quietly.

"I couldn't, Bridge—" Dorothy began.

"I'm sorry, Bridge" her mother said with gentle, wounded dignity. "When these migraine headaches hit me, Dorothy is the only one who knows what to do."

Bridge got out and came up on the porch.

"I had hoped to have a chance to talk with Dorothy. You've given me very few since I came back from college. You've had a headache every time I've wanted to see her."

Her mother went white.

"Do you mean to suggest that I've—I've really not had the headaches?"

"No," he said, as one started on something who meant to see it through; "but, look—don't you always do the same things for them? The things you just mentioned? Couldn't Christine do them for you?" Christine was the maid.

The suggestion seemed to smite one. Well, I am. I'm going to offer it to her now. I want her to go to ride with me and talk about it. Will you come, Dorothy?"

"No," she said passionately. "Not like that! How—how could I?"

"Maybe you can't," he said slowly and painfully. "I don't know. But if you can't——"

Mrs. Conderman gave a little moan and put up her hand to shut the light out of her eyes.

"Come inside," she said faintly. "Out of this terrible light! Dorothy, dear, my smelling salts—please!" And when she had them, "Surely, Bridge," she said, "surely, in the face of illness you could wait a little."

"When you can't stop us any other way, you know." Bridge said as quietly as he could, holding on to himself hard, "you have a headache. You don't know it, but you induce them."

He turned and faced Dorothy.

"I love you more than everything in the world," he said. "I've loved you all my life. But I'm afraid to marry you——" he went very pale; his voice was charged with a deadly earnestness—"if you are willing to let some one else lead your life for you. If you won't face the truth now—— Are you coming with me, Dorothy?"

Mrs. Conderman gave a tiny moan and closed her eyes. There was a long moment of silence.

"I'm coming, Bridge," Dorothy said.

She went over and kissed her mother.

"I am not deserting you," she said gently. "I'll stand by as long as I live; but"—she took a long breath and said it—"I'm not going to be controlled any more."

In the car. "Couldn't we drive to Melton?" she said. "I want to see my father."

MERCHANTS, TRADESMEN LEAD FIELD IN PURCHASE OF 1941 BUICKS

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 15—"The butcher, the baker and candle stick maker." This familiar nursery rhyme line has more than ordinary significance for Buick dealers, whose records show that the troupe represented as merchants and tradesmen buy more Buick cars than any other trade or occupational classification.

This was disclosed today in an analysis of sales of this division of General Motors Corporation covering the distribution of 1941 models since their announcement last Fall. The analysis gives occupational classification of more than 100000 men and women who were among purchasers of new cars since last September, and establishes the percentage of total Buick volume purchased by each group.

Although the feminine influence is considered to enter importantly into the sale of virtually every motor car, men sign the orders in a majority of cases, the survey shows. Of the Buick cars retailed since last September, 83.4 per cent were signed for by the male member of the family. Conversly, 13.6 percent of all Buick cars sold are to women buyers.

No one group predominates as the source of Buick sales. While the classification, merchants and tradesmen, leads the list with 15.2 per cent of the volume, salesmen buy 12.9 per cent of all Buicks sold while the group listed as executives, accounts for 10.9 per cent.

Housewives and housekeepers are the next largest group with 8.7 per cent of the total and represent the largest single group of women buyers. The medical profession alone buys 7.4 per cent of Buick output and combined with other professions such as lawyers, dentists and the like, accounts for 14.7 per cent of the total.

More laborers buy Buicks than financial men, the former classification accounting for 2.7 per cent against 2.1 per cent for the latter. Buyers classified as having mechanical occupations accounted for 5.8 of the sales, farmers 4.5 per cent, public servants 3.6 per cent and clerical workers 3.1 per cent.

The survey disclosed that 82.5 per cent of all cars traded in on new Buicks during the period were from one to four years old with one and two-year-old models accounting for 47.4 per cent of the trade-ins.

CAN ACCOMMODATE NINE

DESCRIBED as a seven passenger, the new long wheelbased sedan and limousine models just announced by DeSoto can accomodate nine persons. They will be on exhibit here next Saturday when dealers celebrate Washington's Birthday with their annual "Open House."

1941 PONTIAC GUILD CHIEFS

CHARLES N. KANE, Boston zone manager, entertained 150 New England salesmen who won membership in the Pontiac Guild. The 1941 officers of the New England division of the Guild are: (Lower, l. to r.) Joseph Senn, president (Mr. Kane), Charles Long, 1st vice president (upper, l. to r.), John Early, secretary, and A. T. Patenaude, 2nd vice president.

Work Rushed on Ford Somerville Showroom

Local workmen at Somerville are rushing work on the elaborate modernization plans for the Ford Motor Co. showroom at New England's only automobile plant.

If present stepped-up schedules can be maintained, visitors on Washington's Birthday . . . next Saturday, will be welcomed in a new modern setting . . . having more than a little of the spirit of the New York Worlds Fair.

New astol tan walls will set off the interesting murals of the great big Ford Rouge Plant, home of Ford and Mercury cars. New Terrazzo flooring, new lighting, and new furniture from the Ford Exposition Building at the Worlds Fair will make this spacious 40x90 display room a truly fitting background for the exhibit of Ford, Mercury and Lincoln cars.

Directing attention to the biggest and best cars Henry Ford has built in 38 years is the newly erected neon sign over the showroom part of the big Somerville plant.

New Studebaker Record

SOUTH END, Ind., Feb. 15—January retail sales of Studebaker passenger cars and trucks by dealers in the U. S. set a new record for the month, Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corp., reported today.

"Factory sales to distributors and dealers in January were the third largest for the month in our history," Mr. Hoffman added. These sales totalled 8115 units against 8529 in January, 1940. Studebaker's factory sales for the year 1940 were the largest of any year since 1928.

"Domestic demand for new cars at retail has been maintained at a high level," Mr. Hoffman said. "Factory sales last month were adversely affected by an inventory shutdown which lasted several days longer than in 1940.

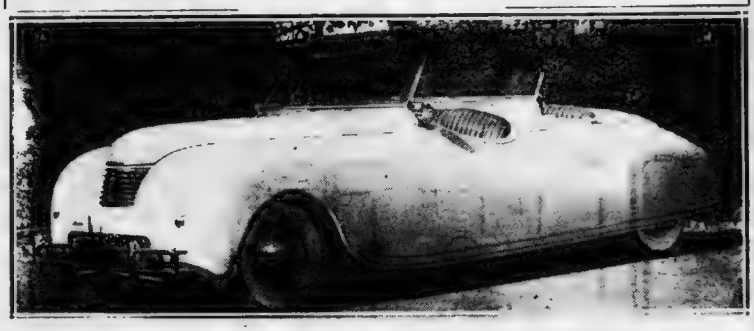
Jacobs Named To Sales Post

Pres. Allen M. Fay, of the C. E. Fay Company, Chrysler-Plymouth distributors here, reports that he has named Ralph B. Jacobs assistant sales manager for the company.

Mr. Jacobs has a long record in the automobile business here. He started in 1907 with the late E. A. Gilmore, who had the Rambler car, that later became the Jeffrey and is now the Nash.

After eight years with that company Mr. Jacobs joined the Henley-Kimball Company and for several years he was manager of its Worcester branch. In his 34 years he has gained much valuable experience as an automobile sales executive and will be a real asset to the organization, Mr. Fay said.

NEWPORT TO BE EXHIBITED HERE FEB. 22



Remember the "Thunderbolt Car," the radically new Chrysler convertible coupe which created a sensation recently when exhibited by C. E. Fay Co., local Chrysler distributors. Well, Norman and Allan Fay have just returned from Detroit where they completed arrangements to secure for their "Washington's Birthday Open House Exhibit" the Newport (above), the sleek running mate of the Thunderbolt.

Best Yet!

Yes, our 1941 Open House Sales will shatter all previous records.

Three Thieves Try to Run Down Officers

Three thieves braved a hail of police bullets today and deliberately tried to run down two officers as they escaped a police trap at the rear of the exclusive Riverside Apartments, Memorial drive, Cambridge.

The officers, Patrolmen Alexander Irwin and Jeremiah Sullivan of the Metropolitan police were concealed in the apartment house parking area, where larcenies totaling $1500 in auto accessories and articles from parked cars have occurred in the past two weeks.

DRIVE AT OFFICERS

When the trio of suspected thieves arrived in a large sedan the officers watched two of the men break into a parked auto then ran to place the group under arrest. The bandits jumped back into their car, however, and drove directly at the patrolmen.

Both officers emptied their revolvers at the auto as it roared off on Memorial Drive in the direction of the Cottage Farm bridge.

Somerville police reported that the car used by the thieves had been stolen shortly before midnight from a garage in Washington st Somerville.

New Data Found In Car Death

powders or other narcotics, police said.

While the doors of the car were unlocked, there were no signs of any struggle. Bohaker was leaning back, as if asleep.

Windows were closed, but carbon monoxide was ruled out when the ignition switch was found turned off, gasoline still in the tank and the battery far from being run down.

Since there were no apparent wounds, a number of shotgun shells found nearby were discounted. Police said these had probably been left from time to time by small game hunters.

WIDOW NEAR COLLAPSE

Bohaker's young widow, Lillian, was in a state of collapse at their Atkins ave. home, but will be interviewed later.

The young salesman had left home Tuesday morning to make a business trip to Maine, according to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. Burpee Bohaker, also of Lynn.

Later that day his car was seen on the seldom-used woods road in Topsfield by Elmer Foye, a Salem bank employe, while on a hike. Foye said a man was slumped in the front seat. Believing the man to be asleep, Foye walked by without investigating.

Foye saw the machine in the same spot when he hiked over the road yesterday and immediately notified the Topsfield State Police barracks.

State Troopers William T. Knightly and Adolph Januska went to the scene and found Bohaker dead.

A note pad was dangling from the dashboard and on it was written a girl's name, telephone number and the notation, "Tuesday P. M." Police prepared to question the girl, although Bohaker's parents said the memorandum was not significant. The girl was identified as a nurse who had treated Bohaker during a recent illness.

MANY FOOTPRINTS

The snow around Bohaker's car revealed many footprints, of which detectives made photographs.

On the dead man's overcoat were discovered several cockleburrs, indicating Bohaker left his auto to walk in the surrounding brush at least once.

Richard G. Bohaker, brother of the victim, identified the body. In addition to his wife, Lillian, Bohaker is survived by a son, Stuart, 7, and daughter, Pauline, 6.

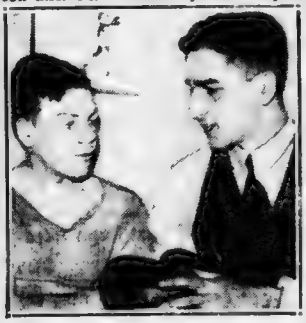
STAID BOSTON TO BOAST ANOTHER RING CHAMP SOON

By HERB FINNEGAN

BOSTON hasn't had many world boxing champions since John L. Sullivan's day—Honey Mellody, Johnny Wilson and Jack Sharkey—but it probably will inherit another before long from a quarter least expected.



LESTER McGOWAN LOU WERTHEIMER

Here's the story:

Louis Wertheimer, benefactor and instructor of Lester McGowan of Buffalo, latest ring rage, wants to make Boston his headquarters, for the sake of the kid.

McGowan, be it known, is from the First (Irish) Ward of Buffalo, the same district which produced the former world light heavyweight champion Jimmy Slattery.

Wertheimer has high ambitions for the youth, now a freshman in high school. He not only wants to see him world welterweight champion but also graduate from college, preferably Harvard. And he'll see to it that McGowan earns his way with his fists.

"I have been told Bostonians love a good Irish fighter," said Wertheimer this morning. "If so, I have just what their hearts desire."

That was an understatement. McGowan, according to Boston's best ring critics, is not a good Irish fighter—he's a great one; in fact the greatest thing to pop into fistic circles in decades.

The baby-faced Buffalo kid came here last month to box in the national all-America finals and was such a sensation winning over Al Medrano of California that he has been brought back here to meet Orlandi Fantl of Lynn in a special added attraction to the Irish-American's inter-city show at the Garden next Monday.

Old timers raved over the boy's ability. They hadn't seen anything like him since the days of George Dixon, etc. But it wasn't always that way.

From 80 Pounds to 118 and Going Up

McGOWAN was a spindly tyke of 80 pounds when Wertheimer discovered him in a boys' club in Buffalo some 18 months back. After nurturing him for a couple of months, he entered him in the novice 112-pound class in the Buffalo Golden Gloves, and the kid cleaned up. But he had four bouts on the way to the title and was so weak at the [illegible] that Wertheimer wisely made him retire for a year to get some [illegible]th into his frail frame. (McGowan's father had been on relief [illegible] years)

When the year was up, last December, McGowan had grown four [illegible] to 5:4½ and weighed 118 pounds. Not only that but he had the chest and shoulders of a lightweight. He had spent the summer at a boys' club camp, and it had done wonders for him.

He was ready to go, and Wertheimer put him back in circulation. Let's look at his record since December:

Won 118-pound open class in Buffalo Golden Gloves.

Won inter-city show one week later.

Won 6-round special bout in Rochester.

Won Buffalo Evening News Diamond Belt title (defeating Babe Chimera who was finalist in national A. A. U. championships here last year).

Won Mid-Western Diamond Belt championship in Detroit, defeating champions from both Detroit and Pittsburgh.

Won all-America national title at Garden.

Fourteen bouts in all and 14 victories. John L. never did better than that.

Now Monday's special bout with Fanti, himself an Eastern all-America champion, and then the New York and national Golden Gloves and possibly the national amateurs.

He Can Lick Best of Pros Now, Says Mike

WERTHEIMER was an inter collegiate lightweight champion when he was an undergraduate at Syracuse (1934) and still boxes with his protege.

What does he like best about him?

"His adaptability. Show him a thing once, and he'll do it just the way you want him to. No questions. He knows it's for his own good. He's developed so fast that he does everything I have shown him better than I do myself."

Wertheimer plans to keep him in amateur ranks until one year from next fall. He figures, with another two summers in a boys' camp, that young Mac will be a welterweight by that time, and that he'll have enough experience to cope with any welter in the country.

Mike McNamee will tell you he can handle any bantamweight in the country right now, including professionals Louis Salica, Harry Jeffra and Sixto Escobar.

It'll be nice to have another boxing champion in our midst. Now if those Sox could only bring us a baseball championship.

Silver Skates Derby At Garden Tomorrow

By WALTER KILEY

Bigger than ever, more colorful than ever, the Silver Skates Derby of 1941 is at long last here—New England's greatest yearly ice carnival spectacle.

Promptly at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon at Boston Garden the winter sports season reaches a mighty climax in a riotous profusion of skating thrills.

An all-time high of 607 merchants of speed, seeking the eight highly prized Silver Skates titles up for contention, will share a capacity gallery's acclaim with the most imposing cast of world renowned exhibition artists, fancy, trick and comedy, mustered for this glittering "Derby Day" occasion.

In six short years, this American-Record Silver Skates classic has become the outstanding ice skating fixture of the East, with its flashing blades, its hard fought competition, its beautiful patterns weaved by master artisans, its spills, laughs and sheer good fun and gayety.

FROM 4 TO 64

Young men and young women, old men and elderly women, and little tykes barely removed from the romper age, coming from the most isolated sections of New England, will play their racing part in this momentous production.

The speedsters represent almost every walk of life, from the most dignified of the professions down to the primary school youngster. In age they range from tiny Leon Backman of Saugus with all his four-year-old solemnity, to 64-year-old Archibald Ellis of Brookline who makes the claim that his skating endeavors have never let him grow old.

In Miss Megan Taylor of London, the Silver Skates Derby has a super-headliner, the newest and most talented sensation along the world's ice skating rialto.

SECOND TO SONJA WHEN 11

Second only to Sonja Henie as world's figure skating champion at the age of 11, the Megan of 20 is undisputed possessor of the "world's greatest" honors, an attractive girl, the personification of grace, who ran away with the international title competition at Stockholm in 1938, at Prague in 1939.

Listen to what Crole Anderson, skating expert, wrote in the St. Paul Pioneer Press of Thursday, February 6, about the girl who comes here to headline tomorrow's Silver Skates Derby.

"Miss Taylor who is coached by Phil Taylor, her father, the world's most renowned still skater, made her American debut a brilliant one with her grace, beauty and all-around dexterity. Whether it was free style skating or an interpretation of Grieg's "To Spring," Miss Taylor was the champion the crowd expected to witness. In Grieg's masterpiece the English star made the ice melt, figuratively speaking, and she gave the audience the impression that she was the true personification of the beautiful season."

The occasion was St. Paul's annual Ice Cavalcade. The St. Paul Auditorium was packed to its capacity for every one of the five

B.C. MAY DE-EMPHASIZE FOOTBALL

EVENING AMERICAN, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1941

Leahy Not Too Happy At Heights

By BILL GRIMES

Will Boston College attempt to continue in big time football or will the authorities grasp the opportunity created by the departure of Frank Leahy for Notre Dame to de-emphasize the popular fall pastime?

For more than a year the big bosses at the Heights have been very much concerned over the success of the Eagles on the gridiron. For not so very long ago they were seriously considering the abandonment of football.

Athletics in general, and football in particular, had put B. C. approximately $140,000 in the "red" before Frank Leahy took over. Today, B. C. has a fine surplus in its athletic association department.

Boston College was founded in order to give the middle and poorer class boys opportunities to acquire educations, not for the purpose of developing national intercollegiate football championship elevens. The scholastic requirements at B. C. are very high. And, the faculty frankly contends and insists that athletics shall always be secondary to studies.

Naturally, the alumni bodies, particularly the subway variety, don't see eye to eye with the faculty on that point. From their point of view, the greatest asset at Boston College is football.

According to the authorities, the enrollment would not be effected in the least if B. C. abolished football.

B. C. ALUMNI STUNNED

When Frank Leahy announced that he had agreed to be head coach at Notre Dame, he opened the gate wide for Boston College to de-emphasize football.

But, while waiting for the decision of the B. C. authorities on the status of football at the Heights, the undergraduates and the alumni are taking very definite stands on Leahy's withdrawal

To say that the followers of football at Boston College were stunned by the announcement is putting it very mild. They are flabbergasted.

Apparently, the alumni didn't get the drift of Frank Leahy's speech at the Varsity Club dinner. Although Ton Scanlon, the toastmaster, stated in his introduction of the coach that Leahy would remain at B. C. for five more years, Leahy didn't mention that he had any such intentions.

In fact, it was last Sunday afternoon that Notre Dame contacted Leahy for the first time. The contact was made via Palm Beach, Fla., where a very intimate friend of Leahy's is wintering. All telephone calls were for Frank O'Flaherty. None were put through for Frank Leahy.

New England college coaches who have shifted jobs since last fall—Who's next?

Champ Scalzo Is Knocked Out By Prelim Boy

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 15 (AP)—Guy Serean, an obscure boxer from Nampa, Idaho, who has done most of his fighting in preliminaries, battered Featherweight Champion Petey Scalza into an eight-round technical knockout in a non-title bout last night.

Serean, a 1-to-4 underdog in the betting, shocked the crowd of 6000—and Manager Pete Reilly, the New Yorker's pilot—by sending his opponent to the canvas twice in the first round, twice in the second and once again in the third.

Serean tired under the bombardment, however, and Scalzo, fighting in close with short chops to the head, took the play in the fourth, fifth and seventh rounds. He came out of the latter with a slit eyelid and Serean promptly went to work on it in the eighth.

He smashed it wide open, saw it turn black, and then Referee Charlie Randolph, on the club physician's instructions, halted the match. The fight was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Scalzo was saved from a possible knockout by the bell ending the second round, and he was in bad shape through the third. Serean weighed 130, Scalzo 128½.

Henry Picard Sets New Course Record

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 15 (INS)—Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., set a new court record at City Park today when he blasted out a 65 to take the head in the second round of the 500 New Orleans open golf tournament with half the field still out.

Picard's record shattering 32-33—65 was seven strokes under regulation figures of 37-35—72. Previous record, tied many times, was 67. His card today gave him a two-round final of 72-65—137. Craig Wood, who played with Picard, also turned in a sub-par card for a two-day total of 70-69—139.

DARLING TO BE BURIED IN NEW HAVEN

Charles Edward "Chuck" Darling, Boston College immortal of gridiron and diamond, will be buried Monday. Services will be held in New Haven, where the famous old Eagle passed away Friday.

At Boston College today the name of Darling is a misty thing. Only the older members of the faculty remember the handsome blond boy who was to Boston College football in the early twenties what the O'Rourkes, the Toczylowskis and the Goodreaults were during the past championship season.

Dr. Frank Jones, talented trainer of Boston College athletic teams, is the only man at present connected with Eagle athletic squads who remembers Darling as a great competitor. Jones arrived at Boston College in 1924—Darling's senior years at the Heights.

"He was one of the greatest athletes I ever had the pleasure of working with," Trainer Dr. Jones was saying as he ministered to an Eagle trackster yesterday.

"I was quite surprised when I heard that 'Chuck' had passed away.

"He was steward on the Sugar Bowl train as far as New York, and was more enthused than the players that B. C. was going to play in a Bowl on New Year's.

"He told the backfield stars of the present championship team that he would only have been a third stringer if they were around when he played.

"Chuck looked great on that ride and I just can't believe he's gone."

BOBSLED RACE OFF

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 15 (AP)—The Lowell Thomas International two-man bobsled championship races on Mt. Vanhoevenberg were indefinitely postponed today because of unfavorable weather.

Only Call of Irish Made Leahy Quit Heights, Says Wife

By PAUL CONNORS

Thrilled by the appointment of her talented young husband to the head coaching post at Notre Dame, Mrs. Florence Leahy, at their modest Waban home, permitted her great joy to be tempered with "regrets that we shall have to leave Boston and all the fine friends we have made during our two-year residence here."

The attractive young wife of the story book former Boston College coach was concerned with thoughts of leaving Boston. Anticipation for Notre Dame and the suburbs of South Bend had not entered her mind.

"The children and I will remain here in Waban until late summer," Mrs. Leahy was saying as Frank, Jr., age 4, and dainty Sue, age 3, frolicked about the room.

Florence Victoria, the Leahy's third child, born when the ex-Eagle coach was in New Orleans for the Tulane game (late September) was sleeping soundly in the nursery.

"Of course I'm happy and deeply proud for Frank's sake. I know that he will be happy at his new post, though he'll miss Boston and Boston College very much.

"In two years we came to love our new home. We were just getting to know people and appreciate our fine friends. Leaving them at this time will be sad parting for both Frank and me."

ONLY FOR NOTRE DAME

Like her husband, who had expressed the thought just before boarding the train for Chicago, Mrs. Leahy was concerned with public opinion.

"I hope that the people of Boston won't resent Frank's resignation from Boston College, for Notre Dame, said the attractive young wife.

"I know he would not have left Boston College for a coaching position at any other college but Notre Dame. He feels he is 'going home to Notre Dame.' That's the only reason he took the job."

Young and personable Mrs. Leahy need have no fear on that score. Boston and its people are intelligent enough to recognize opportunity when it is as apparent as it is in this case. No successful man ever shunned opportunity.

At this point in the interview, Mrs. Leahy injected a word for "Frank's boys at Boston College."

"I only hope the boys at Notre Dame are as cooperative as the boys Frank handled at Boston College. The Boston College boys are an exceptionally fine lot.

MRS. FRANK LEAHY

My husband knows that his success was due in great part to them."

Though she will be forced to establish her third home in two years before another football season rolls around Mrs Leahy is not disturbed in the least

BOSTON WILL MISS LEAHYS

"If Frank is happy—and I know it will be when the present excitement is over—then I'll be happy too," were the words the pretty young wife used to cover this situation.

Thus, with a happy heart and a composed mind does Mrs. Florence Leahy, an obvious asset to a talented husband, consider with mixed emotions a departure from a city which she has "learned to love and appreciate."

Boston—and Waban—will miss Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leahy. They're real people.

Philly Boxing Fans Scorn Dorazio-Louis Go

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14 (INS)—With Gus Dorazio's rendezvous with a blackout only 48 hours away, hundreds of tickets for the heavyweight championship bout at Philadelphia Convention Hall were begging for cash customers today.

Since the 15,000 seats are scaled at a $5-top the unprecedented situation clearly indicates the nonchalant disdain with which even hometowners view the possibility of Gus' chances.

Boland Headed for B. C.?

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 15 (INS—Joe Boland, whose job as assistant football coach at the University of Notre Dame was taken away by the transfer of the full coaching staff of Boston College to South Bend, said today he is "wide open" for coaching offers.

Boland explained that his Notre Dame contract runs until the end of August, and that he has two regular radio shows in South Bend, but added "I couldn't be more wide open for a coaching offer."

He said he had no knowledge of a report that he might be offered the job of head coach at Boston College, which Frank Leahy left vacant by accepting the Notre Dame post.

Arlington-Medford

FIRST PERIOD

Action in this session was fast and interesting but neither team was able to find its opponent's strings. Late in the period, Arlington's Capt. Art Blanchard rode in on Medford's goaler Frank Tuminelli. Only a fancy kickout by the latter prevented a goal.

Score—Arlington 0, Medford 0.

SECOND PERIOD

Medford's Babe Greaves punched the only score of the period in the final minute. Arlington, on at least half a dozen occasions, came within an ace of scoring, but each time there was master Tuminelli in the Medford cage.

Score—Medford 1, Arlington 0.

THIRD PERIOD

Arlington's Allie Burns missed a golden opportunity to score in the final minute of the game, and Medford skated off with a well-earned victory. With Goaler Tuminelli out of the cage after making a spectacular stop, Burns missed connections completely on the rebound.

Final Score—Medford 1, Arlington 0.

AT ARENA

NEEDHAM-WATERTOWN

FIRST PERIOD

Needham High, winner of the Harry W. Lawson trophy, battled surging Watertown to a scoreless opening frame at the halfway mark. Bill Burrows, Needham left flanker, navigated by the Watertown defense, and only by a great save by Goalie Kennedy was Burrows' opportunity thwarted.

Score—Needham 0, Watertown 0.

SECOND PERIOD

Needham jumped to a one goal lead at the 2:52 mark. Don Lumsden flipped a short pass through a maze of Watertown legs to Larry Arra who then poked the rubber by Mike Kennedy. Ronnie Stapleton came right back for Watertown's score at 10:23 on a solo dash down the left lane, firing from about twenty feet out.

Score—Needham 1, Watertown 1.

THIRD PERIOD

In a rough and tough third period canto Watertown pushed the winning counter into the Needham citadel. "Bud" Folino carried down center ice, his hard shot glancing off Bobbie Rae's pads to the waiting Bob Baker, who flipped the disc over the prostrate body of Rae. At the conclusion of the game the presentation of the Harry W. Lawson trophy, symbolizing league leadership, was made to co-Captains Arra and Lumsden.

Final score: Watertown 2, Needham 1.

WALTHAM-FRAMINGHAM

FIRST PERIOD

Waltham and Framingham slugged it out without countering until the tenth minute of play. At 10:11 Waltham right wing, Charlie Butler, broke away from him own defense zone, skated the length of the ice and beat Framingham net tender Frankie Kimball with a sizzler into the upper left hand pocket.

Score: Waltham 1, Framingham 1.

SECOND PERIOD

Both teams pushed each other around in a very listless and dull manner during this chapter. Chet Petrowsky, Watch City goalie, smothered Bob Clinton's close up hard backhander early in the period

Score: Waltham 1, Framingham 0.

THIRD PERIOD

Waltham opened up in this final session registering twice, and increasing its lead to three goals over Framingham. The first came on a backhander from Paul May aided by Bob Wood. Eddie Thomas crossed the crease and backhanded the rubber into the cage for the second and final tally of the inning.

Final score—Waltham 3, Framingham 0.

MECHANIC ARTS SEXTET CONFERENCE CHAMPS

Powerful Mechanic Arts rules the roost in the Boston Hockey Conference today. Mechanics drubbed Trade, 6—0, to clinch the 1941 championship honors in the circuit's final session held at the Garden today.

Latin whipped rival English, 4-0, to climb into second place in the standing and Memorial clipped Commerce, 2-1, to ascend from the cellar.

In a fourth game South Boston and Dorchester played 0-0 tie. The result did not count in the standing.

Walter Kelley, who scored four times and Al Boresh who ripped the strings twice, were the bright shining lights of a potent Mechanic attack.

ARTISANS UNDEFEATED

By winning, Mechanics ended its season undefeated and proud possessor of nine points in the final standing—four wins and one tie.

For two periods the annual clash between Latin and English was a real honest to goodness contest.

Johnny Gill's tally in the sixth minute of the first period gave Latin a one goal advantage which it held throughout the second chapter. Then came the storm.

Latin's Dick McDermott rounded his team's second score in the very first minute of the final round. Less than five minutes later, the same lad lifted the Latin total to three. Bob Casey took Johnny Kinneavy's place at the goal mouth in the seventh minute of play to clinch honors for the Latin scholars.

Walter Johnson and Gil Garte provided the energy which lifted Memorial out of the cellar.

Garte passed to Johnson in the third minute of the first period to give Memorial the game's initial advantage. Joe Shea assisted Jack Falwell in the early part of the second period and Commerce had tied the score, but in the final chapter the Garte-Johnson combination clicked again and Memorial won the game.

SOUTHIE, DORCHESTER EVEN

South Boston and Dorchester provided some of the morning's best hockey but neither was able to score a goal. Early in the final chapter, Dorchester's Charlie Holt, after a nifty solo effort, came within an inch of scoring but "Southie's" goaler Morgan, the shutout king of the league, came up with a corking save and the contest remained a stalemate.

South Boston and Dorchester incidentally finished in a third-place tie in the standing.

New Greek Wrestler Faces Numa at Arena

In the co-feature, Pantaleon Manlapig, champion of the Philippines, meets Joe Cox, of Kansas.

Macricostas formerly was a member of the Greek Army, but was in South America when the war broke out. Since then he has won dozens of bouts on the southern continent and recently arrived here looking for new worlds to conquer.

LEAHY'S DEPARTURE TO IRISH PAVES WAY FOR B. C. TO DE-EMPHASIZE FOOTBALL

and the press were attending Mayor Maurice J. Tobin's luncheon Sunday afternoon, Leahy was on the telephone arranging to meet Fr. John Cavanaugh of Notre Dame at Albany, N. Y., the following day.

According to Leahy, when he signed his five year B. C. contract a week ago last Monday afternoon, it was agreeable to both parties that in the event that he (Leahy) had an opportunity to coach Notre Dame, B. C. would allow him to break the contract.

Leahy was to have received $10,500 per year at B. C. His contract called for a salary of $9500 and a $5000 bonus. Prior to committing himself to Boston College, Leahy had refused two other college offers and also a bid to coach the Detroit Lions at practically his own terms.

Elmer Layden received $8500 at Notre Dame and was given a $1500 bonus to offset an offer to write for a magazine.

Leahy refused to say how much he would receive from Notre Dame but it's almost a sure bet that he will not receive as much as he was to have been paid at B. C.

NOT HAPPY AT B. C.

Knute Rockne's top salary at Notre Dame was $7000 for signing a ten year contract.

Despite his statements to the contrary, Leahy wasn't satisfied with the set up at B. C. Of course, as he said, he'll always have a warm spot in his heart for B. C. where he received his start as a head coach.

If he had felt that he was well enough qualified, Leahy would have quit B. C. a year ago for he received an offer from a mid-western university upon his return from the Cotton Bowl game. But, he decided to stay on for another year. It was a fine decision, for the Eagles won the National championship and he became the most talked of college coach in the country.

Leahy is a good listener. And, he keeps his own council. But, to those who were close to him it was very apparent that conditions were not to his liking during his first season at B. C. Once in awhile he popped off and, when he did, he never pulled a punch.

His assistants were more outspoken and it was a foregone conclusion that if the right offer came along the entire coaching staff would be on its way.

Since his first season as a coach, when he had charge of the line at Georgetown, Leahy has dreamed of returning to Notre Dame in some football capacity—not necessarily as head coach.

When the athletic council at the South Bend institution voted on the successor to Elmer Layden, Frank Leahy received seven of the 10 votes.

GREAT HONOR, SAYS LEAHY

"I feel obligated to Notre Dame," Leahy told the writer before he climbed into the train which took him to South Bend last night. "The reverend fathers and 'Rock' gave me my chance. Now, I have a chance to reciprocate.

"I don't expect to be as successful as 'Rock' but I hope to be able to produce winning elevens at Notre Dame. And, I want to say now that 'I deem it a great honor to be selected to act as head coach at Notre Dame."

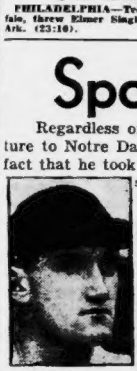
Boston College played fair with Leahy. Without the slightest argument, B. C. released Leahy from his contract.

Over a period of two seasons, Leahy brought B. C. to the top of college football. He made the Eagles one of the greatest attractions in the country. But, in his opinion, he had gone as far as he ever could and now was the opportune time for him to step out.

Now, all that remains for the present to see what stand Boston College will take as to the future of football at University Heights.

Sport-O-Grimes

Regardless of its reaction to Frank Leahy's sudden departure to Notre Dame, Boston College shouldn't lose sight of the fact that he took the Eagles out of the "red" in two short seasons. Before he left for South Bend, Ind., where he'll sign a long term contract late this afternoon, Leahy stated that he'd be in favor of B. C. and N. D. meeting on the gridiron . . . Will Al McCoy land a coaching berth under Dick Harlow at Harvard? . . . Grif Fallon, Frank Craven, Jack McCarthy and Jim Murley will leave for Miami next week. Before returning home, they'll pay a visit to the Red Sox at Sarasota . . . Robert Moses Grove and Jim Tabor were visitors at Fenway Park yesterday. "Lefty" will start back home tonight but Jim will stay over and go South with the first New England delegation, one week from today . . . Now that Frank Leahy has gone to Notre Dame will Gerry Cowhig, the former Mechanic Arts star who is at Marianapolis School, have a change of heart?



Jim Tabor

Al McCoy

Pres. Bob Quinn had a most enjoyable 71st birthday yesterday. One of the numerous telephone calls he received was from his daughters, Mary and Margaret, who are at San Antonio . . . Joe Geary, Boston's No. 2 baseball rooter, plans to go to Sarasota with the Red Sox. In all probability, Joe will be in a huddle from the South Station to the training camp with his boy Jim Tabor.

Freddie Naumetz, one of the most promising sophomores on the Eagles' squad, has put on more than 10 pounds since the close of the season . . . It will be a long, long time before B. C. recovers from the shock of the Leahy move . . . John P. Curley unearthed Frank Leahy and if the B. C. authorities give him a free rein, it's an even bet that he comes up with another "ace."

Dr. Ben Godvin, who is the head of the medical department at Boston College, was eating dinner at the Hotel Lenox when Bill Coker told him about Leahy. Immediately he lost his appetite . . . Coker was like a wild man trying to figure out the whys and wherefors . . . Eddie McKeever will join Frank Leahy at South Bend next week. He is more excited over the break than Leahy.

• • •

Wes Palmer, Johnny Orlando and Freddie Stark will start over the road for Sarasota next Wednesday . . . Jimmy Neary, the Bees trainer, will be on his way to San Antonio Monday . . . When Win Green goes South, Pat Rago, the clubhouse boy at the Bee Hive, will assist Hamie Moore with the Bruins . . . The Bruins are entitled to undergo a let down after their great win over Rangers and may get knocked off tonight by Canadians.

BILL GRIMES.

Mickey Owen Sole Dodger Holdout

HAVANA, Feb. 15 (INS)—Larry MacPhail, the Barnum of Brooklyn, today predicted anew his flock will win the National League pennant.

Cause of MacPhail's new joy was that Pete Coscarart, regular second baseman, signed his contract yesterday, and Alex Kampouris, also a keystone sacker, agreed to the club's terms.

"This is the first time I ever started spring training with only one real holdout," MacPhail chuckled. He meant Catcher Mickey Owen, who definitely is balking for a pay hike.

Ross Fears Letdown Against Canadiens

MONTREAL, Can., Feb. 15—Proud holders of a new National Hockey League record of 20 games unbeaten, the Boston Bruins battle Les Canadiens here tonight at the Forum.

Surviving their record breaking game with the Rangers in good trim, Bruins hope to run their record to 21 games unbeaten tonight, but Manager Art Ross is frankly worried about the result, feeling that there may be a let down after the Rangers game.

Bruins have played Canadiens six times this season. They won by scores of 7-5, 5-3 in Boston and 2-1 in Montreal. They lost to Canadiens 3-2 in Boston and 3-1 in Montreal, and the teams tied 1-1 in Montreal.

DARK HORSE OF LEAGUE

Canadiens who impressed so much in their last game against the Bruins in Boston on January 12, have lost only one game in five since that Boston visit. They tied Detroit 4-4, Americans 3-3, lost to Americans 6-3, beat the Rangers 6-2 and on Thursday night won from Chicago 6-5.

Canadiens are considered the dark horse team of the National League, improving every game, and they are rated as a team that a month from now might be a formidable contender in the League playoffs.

SAVING SCHMIDT FOR LEAFS

Milton Schmidt will probably be out of the Bruins lineup again tonight on the advice of Dr. Marty Crotty, who feels that Schmidt's severe Charlie horse, suffered against Detroit on Tuesday night in Boston, does not warrant him playing. Bruins would prefer to save Schmidt for the game with the Toronto Leafs on Tuesday next at the Boston Garden

A National League game of interest to the Bruins will be that played tonight at Toronto between the Leafs and Rangers. It will be the first of a home and home series. The teams will play back in New York on Sunday night. Games listed also for tomorrow night are Canadiens at Detroit and Americans at Chicago.

Hoppe Crowned Billiard Champ

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 (AP)—It's about time for Willie Hoppe to change his identification tag from "Boy Wonder" to "Ol' Man River."

The 53-year-old New York cue wizard still is king of all he surveys in three-cushion billiards after laying his title on the line twice in five weeks, meanwhile recovering from a siege of influenza and pneumonia.

Willie won his first cue title in 1906. Last night he captured his second straight three-cushion championship with a crushing 50 to 34 victory over his arch rival, Jake Schaefer, in 39 innings. This was his 16th victory in 17 matches in the month-long round robin battle, Schaefer finishing with 14 and three losses for second place.

Schaefer started out even with Hoppe last night, but in the fifth frame Hoppe cut loose with a dazzling 11-run. The Cleveland balkline expert reduced a 13-point deficit to four, but the old master then took charge again and led by a comfortable margin most of the way.

7500 Rush Seats For Skates' Derby

Many thousands of fine seats remain for tomorrow afternoon's Silver Skates Derby at Boston Garden. Despite a large advance sale, there will be plenty of reserved seats to accommodate all who wish for them. Some 7500 unreserved balcony seats will go on sale in the box office at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and will be available into the afternoon.

Reserved seats sell for 55 cents, unreserved at 44 cents and children 14 years and under will be admitted to the unreserved section at 30 cents. They may be purchased at the Garden, the Boston Arena or at James W. Brine Co., 92 Summer st. By securing your tickets early, you get a better choice of location.

R. I. FIVE TACKLES HUSKIES

Rhode Island State's famous high scoring basketball outfit, rated among the five best teams in the country, will give Bostonians a chance to watch their magic tonight at the Johnson Memorial gymnasium in the Y. M. C. A. building.

The Rams, who have scored 15 victories in 16 starts, will meet a crippled Northeastern team in a New England College Conference League game.

Frank Keaney's colorful Rhode Islanders have lost only one game this season—a 42-38 encounter with Temple in Philadelphia that went into overtime. The Rams have scored 1223 points against 740 for the opposition.

shows over a three day stretch, the first time ever. And Miss Taylor was given the full credit for the splendid turnout.

DAD SKATES ON STILTS

Phil Taylor will appear in the Garden tomorrow, too. Skating master of England, Dad Taylor has performed a stilt-skating act novel and daring. But let Miss Anderson again come to the fore. Again we quote:

"Not to be outdone by his illustrious daughter, Megan, whom he developed into the champion of the world, Phil Taylor gave a fancy skating exhibition on 26-inch stilts which kept the crowd spell-bound."

A third member of tomorrow's Garden talent array was a featured performer in that same St. Paul carnival, Edi Scholdan of Vienna, and skating instructor at our own Boston Arena. What better way to describe Edi's glorious performance than for a third time clipping from Crole Anderson's story.

"Edi Scholdan, whose "Hoops and Swoops" wowed a capacity crowd last night in the Ice Cavalcade premiere, fractured a rib in the matinee performance when he crashed into a rail. Receiving medical attention, Scholdan, trouper that he is, adhered to the theater law, "the show must go on" and gave a crack exhibition of ice comedy in the evening show both in his hilarious burlesque of the 'Dying Swan' and again as a two-headed sailor."

QUEEN OF SPEED PERFORMS

Of prime interest to the speed skaters, however, will be the first official New England skating appearance of Miss Carmelita Landry of Fitchburg, the 23-year-old French girl who rose above physical misfortune to win the 1939 Silver Skates Derby in Boston and from that to spring to nation-wide fame.

Miss Landry who will spread her wings and fairly fly around the Garden ice saucer, was recently crowned America's "Queen of Speed" when she raced away to the National women's speed skating championship at La Crosse, Wisconsin. A few days later she added the equally as impressive North American championship in a "grand slam" five race performance.

IMPROVING STILL

Previously she had taken the New England title and intends to make greatest laurels when she lines up in Uline Arena for the national indoor championships in Washington one week from today.

CHAMPION MELROSE SIX BOWS TO STONEHAM, 3-2

Schoolboy hockey champions of both the Greater Boston and Bay State hockey leagues were handed setbacks this afternoon as the circuits played out their regular schedules on the Garden and Arena surfaces.

At the North Station depot, Stoneham turned in a surprise victory, tipping titleholder Melrose by a 3-to-2 count. The Melrose six had clinched the championship earlier in the week, however.

In the other half of this twin bill Medford handed Arlington a 1-to-0 blanking.

Watertown High dunked champion Needham by a 2-to-1 score at the Arena, but, inspite of this defeat, the Needham club was awarded the Harry Lawson trophy, having tucked away the title last week.

In the second Arena game Waltham blanked Framingham, 3 to 0.

"SO LONG, SWEETHEART." Phil Troy and the missus say farewell as Sox traveling secretary headed for Sarasota, Fla., Sox training base, this morning. With Troy were Royal Rooters George Murphy and John Scott of Lewiston, Me., and John Corcoran of Cambridge.

Stoneham-Melrose

FIRST PERIOD

Ralph Rudd gave his underdog Stoneham team a rolling start with an unassisted counter in the fourth minute of action. Melrose fought back viciously but couldn't register.

In the ninth minute Bob Riley lifted Stoneham's advantage to two goals. Before the period closed Ed Landers, with assistance from Guy Wallace, pounded home a third Stoneham counter. The crowd, appreciating the effort of the underdog crew from Stoneham, cheered the blue-shirts to the echo at the end of the period.

Score—Stoneham 3, Melrose 0.

SECOND PERIOD

Stoneham continued to force the issue and held the upper hand during the period until the late part of the session when Melrose's Bill Cronin hit the jackpot. Without assistance, Bill drove in on the Stoneham cage and fired a sizzling shot when within 15 feet.

Score—Stoneham 3, Melrose 1.

THIRD PERIOD

Melrose poured it on in this period, but couldn't tie the score. In the eighth minute of the period Charlie Holt, assisted by Tom Dockrell, notched Melrose's second counter of the day, but there the Big Red's offense ended. Late in the period, Rog Thayer, Melrose defenseman, was forced out of action after being cut on the forehead by a wildly swung stick. Two
